Global Flows, Local Appropriations Sindre Bangstad, 2007 Global Flows Local Appropriations Facets of Secularisation and Re Islamization Among Contemporary Cape Muslims is the first ethnographic study of muslims in Cape Town South Africa at this level in 25 years It explores processes of secularisation and re islamization among Cape Muslims in the context of a post apartheid South Africa in which liberal and secular values have attained considerable purchase in the new political and social elites Fractured by status ethnicity and religious orientation Cape muslims have responded to these changes through an ambiguous accomodation with the new order This study explores this development through chapters on conversions to Islam among black Africans in Cape Town Cape women s experiences with polygyny Cape muslims and HIV AIDS the status of Islam in a prison Cape Town in the post apartheid era and on contestation over rituals among Cape muslims

Negotiating Development in Muslim Societies Gudrun Lachenmann, Petra Dannecker, 2008-05-29 Negotiating Development in Muslim Societies explores the negotiation processes of global development concepts such as poverty alleviation human rights and gender equality It focuses on three countries which that are undergoing different Islamisation processes Senegal Sudan and Malaysia While much has been written about the hegemonic production and discursive struggle of development concepts globally this book analyzes the negotiation of these development concepts locally and translocally Lachenmann and Dannecker present empirically grounded research to show that although women are instrumentalized in different ways for the formation of an Islamic identity of a nation or group they are at the same time important actors and agents in the processes of negotiating the meaning of development restructuring of the public sphere and transforming the societal gender order Universally Comprehensible, Arrogantly Local Wiebke Keim, 2017-04-01 From the perspective of the international scholarly community under North Atlantic domination South Africa might look like a peripheral place of knowledge production In recent years a plethora of voices calling for provincializing Europe for deconstructing Eurocentrism and for adopting post and decolonial perspectives have challenged such views They have partly transformed the academic landscape but have had limited success in challenging the fundamental global divides in production circulation and recognition of social scientific knowledge This book chooses a different take on the question of how North Atlantic domination could be challenged by conceptualizing counter hegemonic currents in international sociology Instead of providing theoretical and deconstructive critiques counter hegemonic currents are effective through collective social scientific practice the production of data knowledge and texts of new generations of scholars the interaction with extra university actors leading to the gradual emergence of integrated and productive scientific communities Their orientation towards local arenas of discussion and production of socially relevant research effectively reduces the belief in the hegemony of the North The historical development of South African labour studies is a case in point This study provides a systematic in depth analysis of research and teaching activities networks with extra academic actors and international cooperation over time in the three major Labour Studies centres Johannesburg Durban and Cape Town It draws on a rich variety of material including annual reports of research centres and labour service organizations teaching contents and exam questions the 1974 2003 volumes of the South African Labour Bulletin and newsletters of ISA Research Committee 44 on Labour Movements Qualitative analysis of four seminal books is used to assess their contribution to original general theory building In depth interviews with Labour Studies representatives complement the analysis of documents and literature by reconstructing the oral history of this scholarly community an indispensable source given that many debates could not appear in written form or had to be watered during the Apartheid years The study concludes that over time South African social scientists have generated knowledge on labour industry and trade unions that is universally comprehensible but arrogantly local Discrimination in an Unequal World Miguel Angel Centeno, Katherine S. Newman, 2010-09 Is globalization making our world more equal or less Proponents of globalization argue that it is helping and that in a competitive world no one can afford to discriminate except on the basis of skills Opponents counter that globalization does nothing but provide a meritocratic patina on a consistently unequal distribution of opportunity Yet despite the often deafening volume of the debate there is surprisingly little empirical work available on the extent to which the process of globalization over the past quarter century has had any effect on discrimination Tackling this challenge Discrimination in an

Unequal World explores the relationship between discrimination and unequal outcomes in the appropriate geographical and historical context. Noting how each society tends to see its particular version of discrimination as universal and obvious, the editors expand their set of cases to include a broad variety of social relations and practices. However, since methods differ and are often designed for particular national circumstances, they set the much more ambitious and practical goal of establishing a base with which different forms of discrimination across the world can be compared. Derived from a broad array of methods, the book draws many important lessons on the new means by which the world creates social hierarchies, the democratization of inequality, and the disappearance of traditional categories. Transforming Cape Town Catherine Besteman, 2008-09-02

An engaging, insightful, and at times beautifully written account of post-apartheid transformation in the city of Cape Town. Besteman shows the continuing legacy of apartheid racial segregation and poverty in South Africa, as well as glimpses of new forms of cultural creativity and identity formation that are characterized by empathy, compassion, and hope. Transforming Cape Town deserves to be read by anthropologists and anyone interested in how people confront the challenges of racial exclusion and historical inequality, and how a few bold agents of transformation seek to create new social spaces to cross old barriers. Richard A. Wilson, author of The Politics of Truth and Reconciliation in South Africa. Cape Town and anthropology come alive in Besteman's work. Insightful, dynamic, and well-written, this book opens a space of trust to understanding the pains and creative innovations of transition of people, politics, and daily survival in a new light. Carolyn Nordstrom, author of Global Outlaws and Shadows of War. Besteman navigates and illuminates post-apartheid Cape Town with uncommon skill. She brings to bear an anthropologist's training, a reporter's eye and ear for the choice remark, the telling detail, and a candid sympathy for the disenfranchised whose lot in South Africa has not necessarily improved under democracy. It's a distressing picture she draws: the persisting mutual ignorance, even reciprocal demonization, across old ethnic and racial lines, alongside the ongoing economic injustice. The revolution in South Africa has been a piecemeal affair, and Besteman's descriptions of the difficulties that even the best-intentioned individuals encounter as they struggle toward creating a general social transformation ring painfully true. William Finnegan, author of Crossing the Line. Dateline Soweto: A Complicated War and Cold New World. Transforming Cape Town is a fascinating account of how people in this divided city engage with democracy, transformation, and the legacies and ongoing realities of radical inequalities. Through conversations with ordinary people, Besteman explores the ways in which apartheid's legacies continue to shape interactions, both intimate and public. In doing so, she restores a sense of faith in anthropology as a tool for understanding and critiquing social worlds. Fiona Ross, author of Bearing Witness: Women and Truth and Reconciliation. Staging Solidarity Tanya Goodman, Ronald Eyerman, Jeffrey C. Alexander, 2015-11-17. The South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) is a modern social drama that enabled the nation's apartheid past to be constructed as a cultural trauma, and by doing so, created a new collective narrative of diversity and inclusion. The TRC relied primarily on testimonies from victims and perpetrators of apartheid violence who came forward to tell their stories in a public forum Rather than simply serving as data for setting the historical record straight this book shows that it was not only the content of these testimonies but also how these stories were told and what values were attached to them that became significant Goodman argues that the performative nature of the TRC process effectively designated the past as profane and simultaneously imagined a sacred future community based on democratic idealism and universal solidarity Language in Cape Town's District Six Kay McCormick, 2002 The book is a sociolinguistic case study of District Six an inner city neighbourhood in Cape Town characterized by language mixing and switching of English and Afrikaans Its early inhabitants included indigenous people freed slaves of African and Asian origin and immigrants from Europe and elsewhere The ravages of apartheid affected the residents attitudes towards their languages in various ways which are described The book examines the norms and practices regarding language choice for various functions and domains in the only surviving sector of District Six It also contains detailed analyses of extended bilingual conversations showing a range of social linguistic and discourse features Of particular interest is the paradoxical polarization and blending of the two languages They are strongly polarized symbolically and functionally yet they are also habitually blended in vernacular speech through lexical borrowing and intrasentential language switching This paradox has interesting implications for the construction of individual community and language identity Citizenship and Social Movements Lisa Thompson, Professor Chris Tapscott, 2010-01-14 Debates over social movements have suffered from a predominate focus on North America and western Europe often neglecting the significance of collective action in the global South Citizenship and Social Movements seeks to partially redress this imbalance with case studies from Brazil India Bangladesh Mexico South Africa and Nigeria This volume points to the complex relationships that influence mobilization and social movements in the South suggesting that previous theories have underplayed the influence of state power and elite dominance in the government and in NGOs As the contributors to this book clearly show understanding the role of the state in relation to social movements is critical to determining when collective action can fulfil the promise of bringing the rights of the marginalized to the fore Graduate Programs in the Humanities, Arts & Social Sciences 2014 (Grad 2)
