Epilepsy Metaphors Eleana Vaja, 2017-10-15 Between 1990 and 2015 American literature saw the emergence of a new corpus of epilepsy metaphors which tackle the stigma of epilepsy within three areas society body and language Eleana Vaja introduces concepts such as protometaphors relational metaphors epileptic texts and metastability to categorize and examine these foci further Applying philosophy as well as hard sciences i.e. mathematics medicine physics to disability studies her study of selected works by Siri Hustvedt Thom Jones Reif Larsen Dennis Mahagin Audrey Niffenegger Rodman Philbrick and Lauren Slater shows how epilepsy metaphors redefine the notion of the liminal and the normal Elements of The Writing Craft Olmstead Robert, 2011-05-30 Great narratives are built piece by piece through myriad small tasks and careful moves In this landmark book Robert Olmstead shows how distinguished writers past and present have built their fiction and nonfiction Through this writer's eye analysis of more than 150 of literature's most finely crafted passages you'll learn to read like a writer Then more than 500 innovative exercises challenge you to experiment with and expand upon the techniques of the masters so you can use them for great narratives of your own Madness on the Couch Edward Dolnick, 1998 Madness on the Couch tells the dramatic story of psychiatry's failed quest to conquer mental illness through talk therapy Focusing on three diseases schizophrenia autism and obsessive compulsive disorder Dolnick describes in detail how psychoanalysts began to blame the victims for their own illnesses of photos Republic of Noise Diana Senechal, 2012 In this book Diana Senechal confronts a culture that has come to depend on instant updates and communication at the expense of solitude Schools today emphasize rapid group work and fragmented activity not the thoughtful study of complex subjects The Internet offers contact with others throughout the day and night we lose the ability to be apart even in our minds Yet solitude plays an essential role in literature education democracy relationships and matters of conscience Throughout its analyses and argument the book calls not for drastic changes but for a subtle shift an attitude that honors solitude without descending into dogma Provided by publisher The Man Who Wasn't There Anil Ananthaswamy, 2016-08-02 In the tradition of Oliver Sacks science journalist Anil Ananthaswamy skillfully inspects the bewildering connections among brain body mind self and society by examining a range of neuropsychological ailments from autism and Alzheimer's to out of body experiences and body integrity identity disorder Award winning science writer Anil Ananthaswamy smartly explores the concept of self by way of several mental conditions that eat away at patients identities showing we learn a lot about being human from people with a fragmented or altered sense of self Ananthaswamy travelled the world to meet those who suffer from maladies of the self interviewing patients psychiatrists philosophers and neuroscientists along the way He charts how the self is affected by Asperger's autism Alzheimer's epilepsy schizophrenia among many other mental conditions revealing how the brain constructs our sense of self Each chapter is anchored with stories of people who experience themselves differently from the norm Readers meet individuals in various stages of Alzheimer's disease where the loss of memory and cognition results in the loss of some aspects of the self We meet a woman who recalls the feeling of her first major encounter with schizophrenia which she describes as an outside force controlling her Ananthaswamy also looks at several less familiar conditions such as Cotard's syndrome in which patients believe they are dead and those with body integrity identity disorder where the patient seeks to have a body part amputated because it doesn't belong to them Moving nimbly back and forth from the individual stories to scientific analysis The Man Who Wasn't There is a wholly original exploration of the human self which raises fascinating questions about the mind body connection

Fighting for Their Lives Susannah Sheffer, 2013-03-15 How do attorneys who represent clients facing the death penalty cope with the stress and trauma of their work Through conversations with twenty of the most experienced and dedicated post conviction capital defenders in the United States Fighting for Their Lives explores this emotional territory for the first time What it is like for these capital defenders in their last visits or phone calls with clients who are about to be taken to the execution chamber Or the next mornings in their lives with their families in their dreams and flashbacks and moments alone in the car What is it like to do this work year after year These attorneys had on average spent nineteen years doing capital defense Through vivid interviews amplified by the author's responses and commentary these attorneys reveal aspects of their internal experience that they have never talked about until now How do capital defenders manage the weight of the responsibility they carry To what extent do they experience symptoms of trauma in the aftermath of losing a client to execution or as a result of the cumulative effects of engaging in capital defense work What motivates them and what do they draw upon in order to keep engaging in such emotionally demanding work Have they considered practicing other types of law What can we learn from capital defenders not only about the deep and long term effects of the death penalty but also about broader human questions of hope effectiveness success failure strength fragility and perseverance

Rhetorical Bodies Jack Selzer, Sharon Crowley, 1999 What significance does the physical material body still have in a world of virtual reality and genetic cloning How do technology and postmodern rhetoric influence our understanding of the body And how can our discussion of the body affect the way we handle crises in public policy the politics of race and ethnicity issues of family values that revolve around sexual and gender identities the choices revolving around reproduction and genome projects and the spread of disease Leading scholars in rhetoric and communication as well as literary and cultural studies address some of the most important topics currently being discussed in the human sciences The essays collected here suggest the wide range of public arenas in which rhetoric is operative from abortion clinics and the World Wide Web to the media's depiction of illiteracy and the Donner Party These studies demonstrate how the discourse of AIDS prevention or Demi Moore's beautiful pregnancy call to mind the physical nature of being human and the ways in which language and other symbols reflect and create the physical world Writer's Guide to Nonfiction Elizabeth Lyon, 2003-03-04
