Maids and Mistresses, Cousins and Queens Susan Frye, Karen Robertson, 1999-01-28 This new collection of sixteen

essays considers evidence for the varied forms of women's alliances in early modern England. It shows how women prohibited from direct participation in the institutional structures that shaped the lives of men constructed informal connections with other females for purposes of survival, advancement and creativity. The essays presented here consider a variety of communities formed among groups as diverse as serving women, vagrants, aristocrats and authors in order to study the historical traces of women's connections. Alliance as understood by the essayists in this volume does not preclude competition or antagonism since the bonds among women were frequently determined by an opposition to other women. As shown here, the theorizing of women's connections and the recovery of the historical evidence for these connections can only add to our understanding of women's activities in early modern English society.

Maids and Mistresses, Cousins and Queens is divided into four sections. The first two, Alliances in the City and Alliances in the Household, examine the circumstances of women's communities in two primary sites for women of this place and time. The second two, Materializing Communities and Emerging Alliances, fully study the aspirations that guided and transformed the courses of women's lives. All of these interdisciplinary essays, deftly combining literary and historical methods and materials, are informed by feminism, queer theory and studies of class and race in the early modern period.
