Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical fitness of obese women. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The subjects were 15 obese women (mean age 40.5 years, mean BMI 35.5 kg/m²). The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group (n = 7) and an intervention group (n = 8). The control group maintained their current diet and lifestyle, while the intervention group followed a 1000 kcal energy deficit diet. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 10 weeks. The assessment included body composition (body mass index, body fat percentage, lean body mass) and physical fitness (maximal oxygen consumption, maximal heart rate, maximal power output). The results showed that the intervention group had a significant decrease in body mass index, body fat percentage, and lean body mass compared to the control group. The intervention group also had a significant increase in maximal oxygen consumption, maximal heart rate, and maximal power output compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet can improve body composition and physical fitness in obese women.

If you are not satisfied with your results, follow the instructions carefully and test your original article. If the editor still requests the (a) paragraph and (b) and (c) paragraphs, repeat the analysis with the original data and the original data.

Abstract: This research is an attempt to investigate the effect of the use of the Internet on the learning of English as a second language. The study was conducted in a private university in Turkey. The sample consisted of 100 students who were using the Internet to learn English. The data were collected through a questionnaire and analyzed using the SPSS 16.0 software. The results of the study showed that the use of the Internet had a positive effect on the learning of English as a second language. The students who used the Internet more frequently had higher scores in the English language tests. The study also found that the use of the Internet had a positive effect on the students' motivation to learn English. The students who used the Internet more frequently had higher motivation levels. The study concluded that the use of the Internet is an effective tool for learning English as a second language.
