

Texas State Board of Examiners of Marriage & Family Therapists v. Texas Medical Association (2017)

- The Supreme Court of Texas (Court) reversed the court of appeals and upheld the Texas State Board of Examiners of Marriage and Family Therapists (Board) rule that permitted therapists to provide “diagnostic assessment” in the course of therapy. The Texas Medical Association had filed suit asserting the rule was invalid because only those licensed to practice medicine may provide a diagnostic assessment. The Association argued that permitting MFTs to provide diagnostic assessments is beyond the scope of the Therapists Act and solely within the scope of the Medical Practice Act because MFTs are making a “diagnosis” of a mental “disease or disorder.” The court of appeals agreed with the Association that the rule exceeded the scope of the Therapists Act. The Board appealed.
- After reviewing the relevant statutory authority in the Therapists Act and Medical Practice Act, the Court evaluated the ordinary meaning of the terms “disease or disorder” and “dysfunction” finding that, contrary to the Association’s purported distinction between the terms, there was no relevant difference.

Therapy Thieves Francis A. Martin, 2020-03-13 Acting on what started as a hunch Dr Francis Martin has cataloged well over 20 000 distinct approaches to counseling and psychotherapy that are advertised on the webpages of licensed practicing mental health providers No doubt some portion of them are harmful but the sheer volume of advertised practices and techniques often with names deceptively similar to actual evidence based practices should be cause for concern among all stakeholders in the helping professions from educators and researchers to policy makers and insurance companies and especially consumers Based on this significant original study and drawing from other research and supports Therapy Thieves describes a near universal crisis in the field and recommends ways to rescue mental health care from itself The crisis is caused by declining competence among counselors and psychotherapists who have failed to regulate themselves and who therefore deliver inadequate if not harmful services In presenting a simple yet powerful indictment of the field Dr Martin advocates for major reforms in several areas of mental health care including how prospective licensees are trained supervised and licensed a major reworking of professional ethics and the need to establish regulations for mental health care providers In short the book calls for major specific and urgently needed reforms
