Race Lessons Prentice T. Chandler, Todd S. Hawley, 2017-05-01 We hold that the mission of social studies is not attainable without attention to the ways in which race and racism play out in society past present and future In a follow up to the book Doing Race in Social Studies 2015 this new volume addresses practical considerations of teaching about race within the context of history geography government economics and the behavioral sciences Race Lessons Using Inquiry to Teach About Race in Social Studies addresses the space between the theoretical and the practical and provides teachers and teacher educators with concrete lesson ideas for how to engage learners with social studies content and race Oftentimes social studies teachers do not teach about race because of several factors teacher fear personal notions of colorblindness and attachment to multicultural narratives that stress assimilation This volume will begin to help teachers and teacher educators start the conversation around realistic and practical race pedagogy The chapters included in this volume are written by prominent social studies scholars and classroom teachers This work is unique in that it represents an attempt to use Critical Race Theory and inquiry pedagogy Inquiry Design Model to teach about race in the social science disciplines

Misguided Notions Garrett Williams, 2011-07-22 Americas public schools are in decline and in need of urgent reform Once the envy of the entire world the American public school system now struggles to keep pace with other industrialized nations and is falling further behind with each passing decade This disturbing trend raises two important questions Why did our schools decline What must we do to make our schools great again To answer these questions Misguided Notions goes back to the roots of human civilization and retraces the development of education over the last ten thousand years Along the way a wise reformer offers warnings based on his eyewitness accounts of the collapses of historys greatest civilizations The evidence is clear when schools discard tried and proven principles of education and when society abandons its core values both will collapse The commonsense solutions offered in Misguided Notions combine proven old school educational principles with the advantages of modern technology Teachers principals school board members parents community leaders and politicians perplexed by the lack of answers to the current dilemma in public education can find enlightenment in Misguided Notions

Color in the Classroom Zoe Burkholder, 2011-10-05 Between the turn of the twentieth century and the Brown v Board of Education decision in 1954 the way that American schools taught about race changed dramatically This transformation was engineered by the nation s most prominent anthropologists including Franz Boas Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead during World War II Inspired by scientific racism in Nazi Germany these activist scholars decided that the best way to fight racial prejudice was to teach what they saw as the truth about race in the institution that had the power to do the most good American schools Anthropologists created lesson plans lectures courses and pamphlets designed to revise what they called the race concept in American education They believed that if teachers presented race in scientific and egalitarian terms conveying human diversity as learned habits of culture rather than innate characteristics American citizens would become less racist Although nearly forgotten today this educational reform movement represents an important component of early civil rights activism that emerged alongside the domestic and global tensions of wartime Drawing on hundreds of first hand accounts written by teachers nationwide Zo Burkholder traces the influence of this anthropological activism on the way that teachers understood spoke and taught about race She explains how and why teachers readily understood certain theoretical concepts such as the division of race into three main categories while they struggled to make sense of more complex models of cultural diversity and structural inequality As they translated theories into practice teachers crafted an educational discourse on race that differed significantly from the definition of race produced by scientists at mid century Schoolteachers and their approach to race were put into the spotlight with the Brown v Board of Education case but the belief that racially integrated schools would eradicate racism in the next generation and eliminate the need for discussion of racial inequality long predated this Discussions of race in the classroom were silenced during the early Cold War until a new generation of antiracist multicultural educators emerged in the 1970s

Critical Race Media Literacy Jayne Cabbage, 2022-07-21 This volume offers deeper exploration and advancement of critical race media literacy a concept which fuses the genres of media literacy and critical media literacy with critical race theory to bring a new and salient frame to the discussion of media literacy across all levels of education in today s globalized race based and media saturated climate Bridging the gap in research that has not addressed the ways in which media is a conduit of racial dialogue and ideology the book brings together a diverse group of scholars that explore their perspectives on critical race media literacy as it is experienced from the interface and consumption of a variety of media texts and social phenomena Topics addressed include news literacy children s literature Black political movements media protests and ethnic rock Critical Race Media Literacy addresses these topics within existing media literacy contexts to enhance media literacy scholarship and educational pedagogy This book will provide a timely and important resource not only for scholars and students of media literacy and media education but also for educators working in diverse learning settings
