Schuh, 2016-10-20 This book documents those first links that students make between content they learn in their classrooms and their prior experiences Through six late elementary school case studies these knowledge construction links are brought to life The links of the students are often rich in describing who these individuals are where they are in their learning process and what is meaningful to them Many times these links point to what has been learned both in and out of school and the contexts when and where that learning took place The mind as rhizome metaphor was used to guide the development and interpretation of the studies while the lens of Peircian semiotics provides an interpretation for these initial links The resulting grounded theory is presented through a rich and extensive presentation of excerpts from classroom observations student interviews and a student writing activity and describes the varying types of student links how the links were prompted the relationships between what the students were learning and what they already knew and specific types of in school links The narrative includes how these links were supported or inhibited in the classroom drawing on the roles of the teachers in the classrooms and what constituted authority sources of information in those classrooms Before exploring the students linking as a process of ongoing semiosis and how this process is part of a dynamic system a study of the relationship between student knowledge links and achievement is shared This rich narrative will be of interest to scholars and practitioners alike and includes an extensive appendix documenting the research methods Beginnings & Beyond Ann

Topics covered in this comprehensive volume include the assessment of biodiversity based on sounds emanating from a variety of environments, the best technologies and methods necessary to investigate environmental sounds, implications for climate change and urban systems, the relationship between landscape ecology and ecoacoustics, the conservation of soundscapes, and the social value of ecoacoustics. 450 More Story Stretchers for the Primary Grades Shirley C. Raines, 1994 Activities to expand children's favorite books. Primary grades. Building a Sustainable and Desirable Economy-in-Society-in-Nature Peter Victor, Robert Costanza, Gar Alperovitz, Herman Daly, Joshua Farley, Carol Franco, Tim Jackson, Ida Kubiszewski, Juliet Schor, 2013-12-03 The world has changed dramatically. We no longer live in a world relatively empty of humans and their artifacts. We now live in the Anthropocene era, a full world where humans are dramatically altering our ecological life support system. Our traditional economic concepts and models were developed in an empty world. If we are to create sustainable prosperity, if we seek improved human well-being and social equity while significantly reducing environmental risks and ecological scarcities, we are going to need a new vision of the economy and its relationship to the rest of the world that is better adapted to the new conditions we face. We are going to need an economics that respects planetary boundaries, that recognizes the dependence of human well-being on social relations and fairness, and that recognizes that the ultimate goal is real sustainable human well-being, not merely growth of material consumption. This new economics recognizes that the economy is embedded in a society and culture that are themselves embedded in an ecological life support system, and that the economy cannot grow forever on this finite planet. In this report, we discuss the need to focus more directly on the goal of sustainable human well-being rather than merely GDP growth. This includes protecting and restoring nature, achieving social and intergenerational fairness.

including poverty alleviation stabilizing population and recognizing the significant nonmarket contributions to human well being from natural and social capital To do this we need to develop better measures of progress that go well beyond GDP and begin to measure human well being and its sustainability more directly The Best in Children's Books ,1985 Resources in Education ,1999-10
