Rooted Globalism Kevin Funk, 2022-10-18 Does the concept of nationality apply to the economic elite or have they shed national identities to form a global capitalist class In Rooted Globalism Kevin Funk unpacks dozens of ethnographic interviews he conducted with Latin America's urban based Arab descendant elite class some of whom also occupy positions of political power in countries such as Argentina Brazil and Chile Based on extensive fieldwork Funk illuminates how these elites navigate their Arab ancestry Latin American host cultures and roles as protagonists of globalization With the term rooted globalism Funk captures the emergence of classed intersectional identities that are simultaneously local national transnational and global Focusing on an oft ignored axis of South South relations between Latin America and the Arab world Rooted Globalism provides detailed analysis of the identities worldviews and motivations of this group and ultimately reveals that rather than obliterating national identities global capitalism relies on them

Gender-Intentional Breeding Case Studies Hale Tufan,Vivian Polar , Jacqueline Ashby,2025-09-16 Plant breeding is experiencing a high level of novelty and innovation at a global scale reshaping its technical possibilities goals and intended impact A critical aspect of this change involves improving the usefulness of new varieties delivered by public sector breeding to specific customer groups to achieve faster more inclusive adoption and equitable benefit sharing in low income developing agriculture The problem addressed by this Collection is that the goal of more inclusive adoption requires breeding to improve its relevance to rural women by implementing gender intentional breeding In the past breeding programs often overlooked the specific preferences roles and responsibilities of women in agriculture although women can be key contributors to farming and livestock management As a result new crop varieties or livestock breeds were not always aligned with women s specific needs such as ease of cultivation processing or storage Poor alignment with users preferences and needs not only hinders the adoption of new varieties but limits their possibilities to benefit from these innovations

Infrastructure Communication in International Relations Carolijn van Noort,2020-11-09 This book demonstrates how infrastructure projects and the communications thereof are strategized by rising powers to envision progress to enhance the actor s international identity and to substantiate and leverage the actor s vision of international order While the physical aspects of infrastructure are important infrastructure communication in international relations demands more scholarly attention Using a case study approach Carolijn van Noort examines how rising powers communicate about infrastructure internationally and discusses the significance of these communication practices The four case studies include BRICS s summit communications about infrastructure Brazil s infrastructure promises to Africa China s communication of the Belt and Road Initiative in East Africa and Kazakhstan s news media coverage of China s Belt and Road Initiative Van Noort highlights the fact that the link between infrastructure identity and order making is arbitrary and thus contested in practice with rising powers operationalizing infrastructure communication in international relations in varied ways She argues that both communication organization and the visibility of strategic narratives on infrastructure influence the international communication of infrastructure vision and action plans with different levels of success Infrastructure Communication in International Relations is a welcome and timely book of interest to students and scholars in the fields of international relations global communications and the politics of infrastructure

Agile Data-Oriented Research Tools to Support Smallholder Farm System Transformation James Hammond, Mark Van Wijk, Aniruddha Ghosh, Tim Pagella, Jacob Van Etten, 2023-05-09 Smallholder farming systems contribute a substantial quantity of the food consumed in many lower and middle income countries and contribute to the national and local economies Despite the importance of smallholder farming a transformation is needed in order to deliver food security and decent incomes for the farmers themselves and at the national level This transformation must also be sustainable in terms of environmental impacts and social equity in order to be successful in the long term The pressures of population growth climate change and land fragmentation compound the problem Addressing these overlapping issues is a big challenge One obstacle is the lack of good quality granular data linking

these issues together Household surveys are the workhorse method for gathering such data but there are well known problems that prevent household survey data from building up a big picture and delivering insights beyond the geographical boundary of each individual study Such obstacles include the lack of access to datasets differences in survey design and respondent biases Agile data oriented research tools can help to overcome these challenges We use the term agile to imply methods that do not attempt exhaustive measurements which are designed to be easy to use and which entail some degree of flexibility in terms of adaptation to local conditions and integration with other tools or methods Often these methods also nudge the behavior of tool users towards best practices In recent years various research tools and approaches have been published which fit within our definition of agile data oriented research tools The domains these tools function in include monitoring and evaluation intervention targeting tailored information delivery citizen science credit scoring and user feedback collection all with the over arching aim to improve data quality and access for those studying the sustainable development of smallholder farming systems The goal of this Research Topic is to better define that niche the ecosystem of tools and current practices and to explore how such approaches can provide the underpinning knowledge required for the transformation of smallholder farming systems One example of an agile data oriented research tool is the Rural Household Multi Indicator Survey RHoMIS It is a modular digital system for building household surveys addressing the common topics in smallholder development It was purposefully designed to give a broad overview of the farm system whilst keeping survey duration to a minimum to be user friendly in implementation and to be sufficiently flexible to function in a broad variety of locations and projects Since 2015 it has been used by 30 organizations in 32 countries to interview over 34 000 households The tool and database are open access and a community of practice is developing around the tool We particularly welcome contributions that engage with the RHoMIS tool and data However we also describe the tool in order to provide an example of what is meant by an agile data oriented research tool and welcome contributions focusing on other tools or methodologies We encourage the submission of manuscripts addressing the above topic and those which fit within one of the following three sub themes i Perspectives or review articles which explore the niche best practices or promising approaches in agile data oriented research tools for smallholder farm system transformation Also technology and code articles that describe new tools are welcomed ii Original research articles presenting analyses based on data derived from agile data oriented tools used at the project level Examples include impact evaluations adoption studies targeting studies or adaptive management and should reflect on the additional benefit leveraged by the agile method applied iii Original research articles that make use of the large amounts of data generated by such agile methods and or link between agile data and other data sources Examples include meta analyses of data from multiple studies layering data collected from different agile tools or linking agile data to remote sensing or large scale modeling outputs

China, Trust and Digital Supply Chains Warwick Powell, 2022-09-01

China Trust and Digital Supply Chains presents a critical reflection on blockchain technologies in the context of their adoption in China and the world that China is engaged in and shaping Approaching the issues of blockchain technology adoption and development on China's own terms is critical if policy makers and others are to make effective sense of one of the key dynamics shaping the next few decades of the global landscape The work challenges the trust trope that dominates much discussion of blockchain technology's application It argues contrary to the predominant trust trope that blockchain is not about trust at all It shows that China's reimagining of the 21st century global order is premised on driving intensified cross border economic interactions without the presupposition of trust and blockchain technology makes that possible It also explores the paradox of technological decentralisation being taken up with vigour by a centralist polity the role of blockchain technology as a critical condition of existence for the successful globalisation of China's digital currency initiative and the need to devise governance institutions that are multilateral in nature to reflect the multi polar nature of decentralised information systems with domestic and cross border permutations This book is of significant interest to readers of political economy public policy blockchain technology and Chinese studies

Evaluating food policy options in Bangladesh: Analysis of costs, benefits, and tradeoffs between targeted distribution versus public agricultural and infrastructure investments Dorosh, Paul A., Thurlow, James, Pradesha, Angga, Raihan, Selim, 2021-09-01 Bangladesh has successfully improved national food security over the last two decades primarily by increasing rice production and consumption. However, the country's food system remains vulnerable to periodic floods and droughts that seriously affect agricultural production and prices. While food imports can cushion the effects of these short-term climate shocks, there is always uncertainty about whether shortages in global commodity markets will coincide with domestic production shortfalls, leading to particularly adverse outcomes, especially for poor farmers and net consumers. This is one of the reasons why Bangladesh's government has maintained a long-standing public grain procurement and storage system as well as a large social protection program that distributes subsidized rice and wheat to poor households. These programs, together with investments in farm productivity, have enhanced the resilience of Bangladesh's food system to climate and world market shocks. Heightened climate variability in recent years has also led the government to increase stocks and make substantial new investments to expand public grain storage capacity.

The Selection Process of Biomass Materials for the Production of Bio-Fuels and Co-firing N. Altawell, 2014-03-28 A functional discussion of the crop selection process for biomass energy. The Selection Process of Biomass Materials for the Production of Bio-fuels and Co-firing provides a detailed examination and analysis for a number of energy crops and their use as a source for generating electricity and for the production of bio-fuels. Renowned renewable energy expert and consultant Dr. Najib Altawell begins with the fundamentals of bio-fuels and co-firing and moves on to the main feature, which is the methodology that assists energy scientists and engineers to arrive at the most suitable biomass materials tailored to each company's business and economic environments and objectives. This methodology provides a framework whereby power-generating companies can insert their own values for each factor, whether business factor, BF, or scientific/technical factors, S/T, or both simultaneously. The methodology provides a list of factors related to the biomass energy business. The average values have been obtained from the survey method and laboratory tests. These values are the standard values power companies can use if they need or wish to use them. The Selection Process of Biomass Materials for the Production of Bio-fuels and Co-firing has been designed and compiled for the widest possible range of readers: researchers, businesspeople, and economists who are connected to the renewable energy field in general and biomass energy in particular. Because of its focus on practical data and applications, the book is also accessible for general readers who may or may not have a technical or scientific background.
