STATEMENT OF TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

A major component of my professional practice includes information literacy instruction – whether it is delivered through formal or informal means, in the classroom or online, or as part of conversations with faculty about how to integrate IL into their own teaching. In this context of teaching and learning, I attempt to integrate, and reflect, the following values:

Information literacy is an academic literacy. Information literacy is part of a broader system of academic literacies – student learning does not start and stop with library resources. The development of information literacy requires librarians to recognise the interconnectedness of information literacy with related learning around academic reading and writing, critical thinking skills, and digital literacies. This relationship must also be reflected in our approach to teaching. In my teaching, I approach research as process that is iterative, organic, messy, and requiring a variety of interdisciplinary skills, like effective academic reading skills, critical thinking around how information is organised in order to access it effectively, effective writing skills, digital literacy, and understanding academic conventions like citation and academic language.

Striking a balance between bibliographic instruction and critical information literacy. Students need bibliographic instruction to undertake their assignments. Knowing how to use specific tools, key library procedures, and the mechanics of finding research materials is part of building effective research skills. However this must be balanced with critical understandings of how information is produced and organised, and how to use information in an empowering, participatory way. By speaking to larger, more complex issues beyond “point and click” instruction, I believe librarians can help students develop the agency to engage in discussions and critical assessments around how knowledge is produced, and to become participatory creators of the production of new knowledge.

Using online learning effectively. Leveraging web-based tools like screencasting technologies, learning management systems or LibGuides, help students learn research skills in a mode that is at their point of need (online), asynchronously (anytime, anywhere) and in a scalable medium (any number of students, any number of times). Well-designed eLearning tools that integrate multimodal learning, flexible learning paths, or interactivity, can greatly enhance student learning beyond the classroom, particularly in the areas of skills-based learning. And as distance education programs proliferate, eLearning tools are critical to ensuring that virtual classrooms are effectively supported by the library. I am committed to understanding principles of instructional design, usability, and online learning to help enhance student learning in the virtual environment.

Engage students. As the gamification movement has illustrated, engagement is critical to placing students at the centre of the teaching process and ensures more effective learning. To this end, I like to be personable, funny, and dynamic, to help students feel comfortable in the class. I integrate tools of active learning, ranging from eLearning technologies to in-class group work to create a learning experience that is dynamic and memorable. These methods allow students to interact with the course content and pursue inquiry of their research topics in an open and authentic way. They work both collaboratively and independently to develop skills in synthesis of research questions, critical assessment of information sources, effective search strategies, and other aspects of information literacy.

Continually assess teaching. Assessment and evaluation are essential for an instructor’s on-going professional development. I employ in-class assessment throughout sessions to identify potential gaps between what is being taught and what students have learned. I also integrate assessment into eLearning tools to ensure students are on track. Evaluations from students provide critical feedback that allows me to reflect on ways to improve my teaching methodologies. They afford key insights from students that help me better execute student-centred instruction that provides appropriate challenges in the classroom.

They Even Paid Me for Teaching Gordon Hans Flammer, 1998      Resources in Education ,2000-10      Educational Judgments Doyle F. James, James F. Doyle, 2009-12-08 The topics covered in this volume originally published in 1973 include the need for a more adequate concept or definition of education the issue of whether indoctrination is compatible with education particularly with moral education and the processes of judging the merits of different approaches to aesthetic education Two contributors present complementary analyses of the relations between freedom as a characteristic of institutions and the process of learning to be a free man There is discussion of the neglected subject of rights and duties in education with special emphasis on the question of a universal right to education The volume concludes with papers on the relevance of philosophy to the practical judgments of educators and to education as a field of study      Philosophical Documents in Education Tony W. Johnson, Ronald F. Reed, 2012 The introduction to the fourth edition of Philosophical Documents in Education asks the simple question what does it mean to be educated That simple but profound inquiry is answered throughout the anthology s 16 chapters by both classical and contemporary educators progressives and philosophers Driven by the idea that students can better understand and practice their profession by reading contemplating and discussing philosophical and historical literature this collection of primary sources exposes readers to a wealth of ideas regarding teaching learning schooling and instruction from ancient texts to modern selections      Papers in Honor of Josiah Royce on His Sixtieth Birthday ,1916      Parliamentary Papers Great Britain. Chambers, 2013-03-14 This book is about the teaching and study of the humanities in our universities It addresses humanities educators whose job it is to teach undergraduate students researchers into the processes of teaching and learning involved and higher education policy makers The book aims to stimulate discussion among them of the proper purposes processes and outcomes of this form of education And in the process it aims to help define and develop the new field of Arts and Humanities Higher Education AHHE In the humanities as in other academic domains of higher education a public discourse of teaching and of students learning is presently underdeveloped This may seem surprising given the long history of the university as an institution and the huge resources devoted to higher education in many countries but there are of course reasons for it First until very recently there has been no profession of teacher education focused on the academy Simply academics have needed neither training nor qualification as teachers of their subject so that no one has been required to make teacher education their business or teaching learning in 2 higher education their special field of interest As regards schooling the The label Arts and Humanities Higher Education reflects the fact that the humanities subjects Classics Cultural Studies History Art History European Studies Languages Literature Philosophy Religious Studies etc are usually taught in the Faculty of Arts in UK universities The book does not include discussion of the fine or performing arts except incidentally
