

A. Level (includes ALC) Business Studies (IBDT)

What support materials are available?

- Syllabus
- Specimen Question Papers (written schemes)
- All and A level Materials Booklet – this includes examples of material student answers to ALC and A level questions and has a commentary from expert examiners
- Question Papers and Mark Schemes
- All the above are available from CIE Publications

How many hours/ contact time do you recommend for ALC at least?

Over a two year A level course approximately 12 hours per week of teaching time would be sufficient. Students will be expected to do individual work outside of this time.

How can I get in touch with other teachers of Business Studies?

We have an email discussion list which you may find useful. The discussion lists are based on a social technology. Sending a message or query to the list will mean that it is received by all members of the list. By being a member of the list teachers can share ideas, resources and ask subject related questions which will be seen by the CIE Product Manager and examiners but also by all other teachers who have registered on the list. For example, a teacher could ask how everyone is approaching a particular topic, what books they might recommend or simply find out who else is teaching the subject.

You can join the discussion list by e-mailing us at ibdt@cie.org.uk

It appears that the first year ALC exam is based on some aspects of the syllabus. Should it be better when teaching your topic, to cover it in depth, instead of just teaching the surface, and making it easier for the students to write the first year exam?

The approach to teaching the Business Studies syllabus really depends on when you plan to enter students for the examination. If you are planning to enter your candidates for all 4 papers at the end of the second year then you could follow the core and concentrate parts of each topic in year 10 before moving to the next topic. This would be fully acceptable.

However, if you wish to take advantage of the staged assessment and enter your students for the ALC at the end of the first year, then you are unlikely to have time to cover the Core and Extension topics across the every topic in the syllabus. The syllabus covers skills in knowledge, application, analysis and evaluation. It is important to focus, not only on the subject content for the ALC and A level, but also on the skills that candidates are expected to demonstrate. The ALC examinations place a larger emphasis on the skills of knowledge and application, whereas the A level papers (Paper 1 and Paper 2) place a greater emphasis on the more challenging skills of analysis and evaluation. It is expected that the first year of the course will concentrate on the skills of knowledge and application. The second year looks at some additional topics (extension topics) but also looks at the skills of analysis and evaluation, which are more difficult skills than those of knowledge and application.

Will the ALC exam (Paper 1 and Paper 2) be testing both the core and extended syllabus or only the extended?

Paper 1 and Paper 2 will cover Core and Extension topics.

The specimen papers suggest that the level of difficulty for ALC and A level are the same. Is this really the case?
