ABSTRACT

In today's context, the most of countries are very seriously affected due to COVID-19 Nationwide lockdown. A horrible date of deaths and infected cases received throughout the world including India. No sector remained untouched from pandemic including higher education. All the schools, colleges and universities closed down by postponing their entrance tests and other examinations while shifting to online mode of learning from traditional classroom. The electronic means have been utilized for learning. But, the motive has not been achieved due to poor internet connectivity, network issues lack of sufficient training to teachers and bad economic condition of the students. The Education mechanism suffered during the period. This research article emphasizes the consequences of the pandemic on the higher education mechanism of India and others as required.

Introduction

Indian higher education system considered world's third largest education system with more than 20,000 colleges and 800 universities and other institutions having about 8 million students. Generally, traditional mode of education i.e., classroom method has been adopted by all the educational institutions. But, in today's time, the entire world including India faced the problem of pandemic "Covid-19" demanding social distancing as a remedy thereto. Therefore, nationwide lockdown was imposed throughout the country by shifting from traditional classroom to e-classes. However, while adopting the online mode, difficulties have been faced by the students and teacher for low economic status, poor internet connection and lack of sufficient training to teachers. Moreover, some of the states like Maharashtra solved the problem of poor internet connectivity by telecasting lectures on Television and Radio.

Apart from this, active role has been played by the UGC by issuing time to time guidelines. The pandemic has not only affected the higher education during the period but after effects may be traced out with the possibilities like shifting to digital mode of education, reduction in demand for study in foreign countries by Indian students, reduction in international studies in India, minimizing the paying capacity of population, lack of hostel admissions, demand for new courses and transformation of curriculum of the institutes. This paper to trace effects of the pandemic on higher education in India during the pandemic and post pandemic by utilizing analytical method of research.

II. HIGHER EDUCATION IN INDIA

Higher education system of India is considered world's third largest education mechanisms. There are more than 20,000 colleges and more than 800 universities with about 8 million students.

Autonomous and Non-Autonomous Colleges have also been imparting education in the country. Apart from this, the urge of education also been satisfied by distance learning and open education which is looked after by Distance Education Council, IGNOU with approximate 3.5 million students considered world's largest university along with Jawaharal Nehru University and University of Mumbai for higher standard universities globally. Moreover, the University Grant Commission is regulating body to the higher education in India.

III. IMPACT OF COVID-19 ON HIGHER EDUCATION

Recently, the entire world comes under the garb of pandemic. India joined the battle in January, 2020 as first case came in Kerala in the month of January. As a result thereto, a nationwide lockdown was imposed on March 25, 2020 for 21 days extended to May 3 and further till May 31 and so on with some relaxations to combat the threat of the pandemic in the country. During the period, numerous people lost their life throughout the World including India with no sign of combating the virus.

During the period, all the sectors, including agriculture, automobiles, oil and gas, aviation, railways, retail and higher education has been adversely affected by the virus. The impact remained more or less. All schools, colleges and universities across the country were temporarily closed down for combating the spreading of the virus by adopting online mode of study. All the entrance tests along with other examinations of various disciplines, including agriculture, law, medical, fashion designing, engineering and many more were reschedule or postponed during the period.

A. Digital Learning

At the time of pandemic, digital learning proved a blessing to education sector. Traditional methods of study have been shifted to online/e-learning mode. For the purpose, platform like e-classes have been utilized by the educational institutes.

B. Obstacles to e-learning

No doubt, digital learning has proved blessing to higher education during the period of lockdown. But, the desired purpose has not been fully satisfied for certain obstacles which include as follows:

- (i) Economic Status of Students: Online classes required certain devices like desktop/ laptop, smart phone and tablets. But, accessibility of devices depends upon the economic status of the students. Therefore, most of the students with lower economic background remained away from the benefit of e-learning or online classes.
- (ii) Poor Connectivity in Remote Areas: In most of the remote areas, the e-learning mode of education remained unsuccessful for poor connectivity of internet.
- (iii) Lack of Adequate Training to Teachers: Special training to teachers has been required for conducting efficient e-learning. But, the desired purpose of shifting to online teaching remained unsuccessful in the absence of sufficient training to teachers.
