then focuses on the cases of Somalia and Bougainville. The comparison between their societal contexts, their conflicts, peace operations, and final outcomes are crucial to this argument. Furthermore, this shows how the constraining, maximising, and emergent values of restorative justice can be applied in a peacekeeping setting from the overall command level through to the behaviours of deployed peacekeepers with direct contemporary application. This sharp study makes for evocative reading as it introduces the new concept of regeneration as key to any restoratively arranged peace operation. Military police, NGO and civilian peacekeeper practitioners as well as academic theorists can use this unique work to produce better and more lasting results for conflict-ridden communities.

The Special Operations Executive (SOE) in Burma Richard Duckett, 2017-10-30. In the mountains and jungles of occupied Burma during World War II, British special forces launched a series of secret operations assisted by parts of the Burmese population. The men of the SOE, trained in sabotage and guerrilla warfare, worked in the jungle deep behind enemy lines to frustrate the puppet Burmese government of Ba Maw and continue the fight against Hirohito's Japan in a theatre starved of resources. Here Richard Duckett uses newly declassified documents from the National Archives to reveal for the first time the extent of British special forces involvement from the 1941 operations until beyond Burma's independence from the British Empire in 1948. Duckett argues convincingly that Operation Character and Operation Billet, large SOE missions launched in support of General Slim's XIV Army offensive to liberate Burma, rank among the most militarily significant of the SOE's secret missions. Featuring a wealth of photographs and accompanying material never before published, including direct testimony recorded by veterans of the campaign and maps from the SOE files, The SOE in Burma tells a compelling story of courage and struggle in during World War II.
