Accountability in education: meeting our commitments UNESCO,2017-10-30 The second edition of the Global Education Monitoring Report GEM Report presents the latest evidence on global progress towards the education targets of the UN Sustainable Development Goals With hundreds of millions of people still not going to school and many not achieving minimum skills at school it is clear education systems are off track to achieve global goals The marginalized currently bear the most consequences but also stand to benefit the most if policy makers pay sufficient attention to their needs Faced with these challenges along with tight budgets and increased emphasis on results oriented value for money countries are searching for solutions Increased accountability often tops the list The 2017 8 GEM Report shows the entire array of approaches to accountability in education It ranges from countries unused to the concept where violations of the right to education go unchallenged to countries where accountability has become an end in itself instead of a means to inclusive equitable and high quality education and lifelong learning for all The report emphasizes that education is a shared responsibility While governments have primary responsibility all actors schools teachers parents students international organizations private sector providers civil society and the media 0 3 have a role in improving education systems The report emphasized the importance of transparency and availability of information but urges caution in how data are used It makes the case for avoiding accountability systems with a disproportionate focus on narrowly defined results and punitive sanctions In an era of multiple accountability tools the report provides clear evidence on those that are working and those that are not Back cover

From Editor's Desk Perhaps in no other situation a physician experiences the same magnitude of agony and ecstasy as while attending an emergency. Though initially one tends to be down in the dumps after being unsuccessful in a case or being euphoric over a successful management of a dire emergency, in due course one develops an attitude of equanimity. This attitude is essential so that our own emotions do not affect our management plans. I have chosen two aphorisms in Medicine: Primum non nocere and Primum succurere. While attending to a patient, if we are not able to cure him or relieve him, it is excusable, but we have to do our best not to harm the patient in the process, and if we happen to be in the vicinity of any one in need of urgent medical attention, we shall hasten to attend to him. These are the respective connotations of these aphorisms. Sometimes we have hesitation in attending to a patient in need of medical attention when the given situation does not belong to our expertise, lest we err in the management, like a physician at the site of a road traffic accident. The Supreme Court has ruled that a medical professional should not hesitate on such grounds and must try to provide whatever care he can provide in such cases. That exactly is what Primum succurere means. Emergencies in medicine include many sub-specialties, but to restrict the number of pages and the size of the Monograph, we are concentrating mainly on topics we face in our steady clinical practice as physicians. I have attempted to present the management of the medical emergencies in different scenarios, such as situations where no assistance or special tools are available, to situations where all types of assistance and tools are available, as in an intensive care unit. We have also included topics on the role of alternative medicine in emergency handling of cases. This emergency medicine, a new branch of medicine, has become so indispensable presently that the MCI Medical Council of India and its BOG Board of Governors, in their notification on November 14, 2019, state as follows: No MBBS course, not to medical colleges in the country, without an emergency department (ED). The measures call for all medical colleges to have a fully functional ED as per the MCI norms by 31st March 2022, adding that all new medical colleges seeking LOP (Letter of Permission) w.e.f. 2021-2022 MBBS batch should ensure that a fully functional ED is in existence as per the MCI norms.
