Affairs Committee,2011-05-17 The Committee is pleased with the relatively high take up of Forced Marriage Protection Orders 293 issued between November 2008 and February 2011 but disappointed at a lack of agency follow up to ensure compliance In the rare instances where breaches are discovered not enough action is taken with only one individual jailed It recommends that the Government while maintaining this civil route also criminalises forced marriage as the Prime Minister promised to consider while in Opposition This would send a stronger message that forced marriage will not be tolerated Our predecessors found that many school authorities were reluctant to take action to protect their pupils against forced marriage in part because they feared accusations of racism Evidence suggests this situation has not changed and the Secretary of State must take a more pro active approach to remind schools of their statutory responsibilities and make use of the inspection regime to improve performance The Committee has repeatedly raised the plight of estranged or abused partners who are under pressure from their families to sign a request for their spouses to have indefinite leave to remain in the UK or who simply want to be kept informed of the progress of their spouse s application but are refused this information by the UK Border Agency because of data protection During its inquiry the Information Commission confirmed that there are situations in which data protection considerations can legitimately be overridden and the Committee therefore urges the UK Border Agency to encourage staff to use their discretion in these kinds of cases Domestic Violence, Forced Marriage and 'honour'-Based Violence Great Britain.
