

Caldari COSMOS by Jowen Datloran

Okkelen constellation

Introduction

My aim with this guide is to provide a thoroughly description of all available agent mission and deadspace complexes in the Okkelen constellation. I have tried with this guide to gather as much info of the story going on in Okkelen between the various Caldari and pirate corporations trying to settle in the harsh frontier. As such, I try to include interesting message pop-ups and mission debriefings where appropriate. Hopefully this can be of interest for some.

I do not believe there is a „correct order“ to access the agents in. Instead you should look at those that your standings give you access to and read through their mission descriptions. You will quickly find out if the agent requires previous missions to be completed before you can access them, or if their missions are too difficult for you to handle. It is important to note, that most COSMOS missions can be done only once per character, so failing a storyline mission will close off all following missions for that agent as well as mission from agents that requires certain items that you no longer can possibly achieve.

I try to give as good as possible descriptions of the encounter/combat missions by listing the hostile guard ships you will meet at the mission site. The listed ship class and eventual bounty should make it possible to approximate how difficult the encounter will be. I have not listed any info regarding pick up and drop off stations for courier missions, as there is nothing difficult in setting a destination and press autopilot.

The “Trade/hunt” mission type tag means that to complete this mission you need to go fight some NPCs to get a specific item from their wreck or from a container they will drop upon destruction (often in one of the public deadspace complexes). The “Trade/search” mission tag means that either the required item is given to you by another agent or that the item can be found in a structure/container which requires little to no combat to access. Often the items required for Trade missions can be bought off the market from people who have been able to acquire spares.

Mission rewards

I care little for listing potential item rewards and standing increases that other guides do, as I believe that a better guide focus on helping you through to the reward, which by its nature will be a pleasant surprise anyhow. You do not want to know what is your present on beforehand, do you? Though in general, you will achieve standing increase with the corporation any particular agent belong to for any storyline mission you do for him/her and a major boost to corporation and faction when completing the last storyline mission in the agents mission chain (the ones marked Important!). The actual increases will be dependent on the mission difficulty, agent level and how fast previous mission runners have completed the mission. Many missions will also payout monetary rewards and some will hand out attribute enhancing implants. The level of the implant will be dependent on mission difficulty and agent level, but which attribute the implant enhances will be random. Other times you will be rewarded blueprint copies (generally 3 runs) of special COSMOS related weaponry and modules (the ones listed as Storyline under module variations). These can require Guristas components that can be found inside spawn containers (requires a Codebreaker module to open) in the Contested Caldari Lai Dai Refinery complex in the Airmia system or in the Contested Caldari Mining Facilities complex in the Friggi system.
