Competing Voices from World War II in Europe Harold J. Goldberg,2010-03-23 Obviously there are many books written about World War II but very few of them present competing voices Written for college bound high school students first and second year undergraduates and general readers of military history Competing Voices from World War II in Europe highlights the different perspectives and views of all belligerents in the military arena as well as describing the impact of the war on daily life The book begins in 1939 with the invasion of Poland and ends in 1945 with Germany's surrender However an introductory chapter puts the war in perspective by examining key events preceding the invasion of Poland and a concluding chapter looks at the controversy surrounding the Nuremberg Trials after the end of hostilities Though well known the main events of the war often remain controversial and minor events are still relatively unexplored Though it is often assumed that Allied victory was inevitable and that all the Allies worked together in a seamless fashion this book provides evidence that contradicts these basic concepts Presented with directly reported sources together with all the contextual information readers will be able to develop their own opinions about events such as the Munich Conference the defeat of France the debate over a second front the D Day events of 1944 the development of Soviet American relations throughout the war and the origins of the Cold War

The Story of International Relations, Part Two Jo-Anne Pemberton,2020-02-04 This book is the second volume in a trilogy that traces the development of the academic subject of International Relations or what was often referred to in the interwar years as International Studies In this volume the author begins with the 1932 Mission to China and conference in Milan examines the International Studies Conference reviews the Hoover Plan the MacDonald Plan the fate of the World Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations role in the discipline This one of a kind project takes on the task of reviewing the development of IR aptly published in celebration of the discipline's centenary

Memory of War in France, 1914-45 M. Perry, 2011-01-19 Memory of War in France examines France in the era of world war through the unconventional eyes of the veteran activist and novelist César Fauxbras. It encompasses the French navy at war, the naval mutinies of 1919, the experience of unemployment, interwar pacifism, French defeat in 1940, and Paris under the heel of German occupation.

Gender, Generation, and Journalism in France, 1910-1940 Mary Lynn Stewart, 2018-06-20 In the late nineteenth century the first wave of female journalists began writing in the French daily press. Yet while they undeniably opened doors for the next generations of educated women, sexist hiring practices, assumptions about women's aptitudes as reporters, and more subtle gender biases continued to saturate the industry in the decades that followed. Gender, Generation, and Journalism in France, 1910-1940 investigates the careers and written work of ten women who regularly reported in the national Paris-based dailies. Addressing the role of mentorship, family connections, gendered behaviours, reporting styles, and subject matter, Mary Lynn Stewart debunks lingering essentialist notions about women's entry into journalism. She shows that struggling newspapers, attempting to reverse declining circulation, hired women to cover subjects that expanded to include international relations, colonial conflicts, trials, local politics, and social problems. Through content analysis, deixis, and systematic comparisons of several women and men reporting on the same or different events, she further queries claims about a feminine style, finding more similarities than differences between masculine and feminine reporting. Documenting the persistence of gender discrimination in the hiring, assigning, and assessment of women reporters in the French daily press, Gender, Generation, and Journalism in France, 1910-1940 demonstrates that through the support of their female colleagues, women managed to succeed despite a variety of challenges.

Selling the Yellow Jersey Eric Reed, 2015-01-07 Yellow Livestrong wristbands were taken off across America in early 2013 when Lance Armstrong confessed to Oprah Winfrey that he had doped during the seven Tour de France races he won. But the foreign cycling world, which always viewed Armstrong with suspicion, had already moved on. The bellwether events of the year were Chris Froome's victory in the Tour and the ousting of Pat McQuaid as director of the Union Cycliste Internationale. Even without Armstrong, the Tour will roll on; its gigantic entourage includes more than 200 racers, 450 journalists, 260 cameramen, 2,400 support vehicles carrying 4,500 people, and a seven-mile-long publicity caravan. It remains one of the most watched annual sporting events on television and a global commercial juggernaut. In Selling the Yellow Jersey, Eric Reed examines the Tour's development in France as well as the event's global athletic, cultural, and commercial influences. The race is the crown jewel of French cycling, and at first the newspapers that owned the Tour were loath to open up their monopoly on coverage to state owned television However the opportunity for huge payoffs prevailed and France tapped into global networks of spectatorship media business athletes and exchanges of expertise and personnel In the process the Tour helped endow world cycling with a particularly French character culture and structure while providing proof that globalization was not merely a form of Americanization imposed on a victimized world Selling the Yellow Jersey explores the behind the scenes growth of the Tour while simultaneously chronicling France's role as a dynamic force in the global arena

Shanghai on the Metro Michael B. Miller, 2021-01-08 Secret agents gun runners White Russians and con men they all play a part in Michael B Miller's strikingly original study of interwar France Based on extensive research in security files and a mass of printed sources Shanghai on the Metro shows how a distinctive milieu of spies and spy literature emerged between the two world wars reflecting the atmosphere and concerns of these years Miller argues that French fascination with intrigue between the wars reveals a far more assured and playful national mood than historians have hitherto discerned in the final decades of the Third Republic But the larger history set in motion by World War I and the subsequent reading of French history into global history are the true subjects of this work Reconstituting through his own narratives the histories of interwar travel and adventure and the willful turning of contemporary affairs into a source of romance Miller recovers the ambience and special qualities of the age that produced its intrigues and its tales of spies This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1994
