Patent Settlements in the Pharmaceutical Industry under US Antitrust and EU Competition Law Amalia Athanasiadou, 2018-08-14 Reverse payment settlements or pay for delay agreements between originators and generic drug manufacturers create heated debates regarding the balance between competition and intellectual property law. These settlements touch upon sensitive issues such as timely generic entry and access to affordable pharmaceuticals and also the need to preserve innovation incentives for originators and to strengthen the pipeline of life saving pharmaceuticals. This book is one of the first to critically and comparatively analyse how such patent settlements and various other strategies employed by the pharmaceutical industry are scrutinised by both United States US and European courts and enforcement authorities and to discuss the applicable legal tests and the main criteria used for their assessment. The book's ultimate objective is to provide guidance to the pharmaceutical industry regarding the types of patent settlements strategies and conduct which may be problematic from US antitrust and European Union EU competition law perspectives and to assist practitioners in structuring settlements which are both efficient and compliant. To this end an exhaustive legal analysis of some of the most controversial issues regarding pharmaceutical patent settlements is provided including the lengthy split among US Circuit Courts on the issue of pay for delay settlements its resolution by the US Supreme Court in FTC v Actavis and subsequent jurisprudence the decision of Lundbeck v Commission by the European General Court and the Servier decision of the European Commission the Roche Novartis decision of the European Court of Justice and the most important decisions by National Competition Authorities on pharma patent settlements in the EU an overview of other types of strategies such as product hopping and product reformulations no authorised generic commitments problematic side deals mechanisms affecting generic substitution the rejection of the scope of the patent test in both the US and the EU and the balancing of patent law and antitrust law considerations in the prevailing applicable tests the benefits of settlements and the main criteria for assessing their legitimacy under US antitrust and EU competition law. The analysis provides concrete examples of both illegitimate and legitimate settlements and strategies emphasising on conduct that falls within a grey zone and on the circumstances and criteria under which such conduct could be deemed problematic from an antitrust perspective. This book will serve as a valuable guide for pharmaceutical companies wishing to minimise the risk of engaging in conduct that could potentially infringe US antitrust and EU competition law. It further aims to save courts and enforcement agencies and also practitioners and academics considerable time and resources by providing an exhaustive analysis of the relevant caselaw with the ultimate goal to increase legal certainty on the most controversial aspects of patent settlements in the pharmaceutical industry.

EU Competition Law, Data Protection and Online Platforms: Data as Essential Facility Inge Graef, 2016-10-17 All are agreed that the digital economy contributes to a dynamic evolution of markets and competition. Nonetheless concerns are increasingly raised about the market dominance of a few key players. Because these companies hold the power to drive rivals out of business regulators have begun to seek scope for competition enforcement in cases where companies claim that withholding data is needed to satisfy customers and cut costs. This book is the first focus on how competition law enforcement tools can be applied to refusals of dominant firms.

to give access data on online platforms such as search engines social networks and e commerce platforms commonly referred to as the gatekeepers of the Internet The question arises whether the denial of a dominant firm to grant competitors access to its data could constitute a refusal to deal and lead to competition law liability under the so called essential facilities doctrine according to which firms need access to shared knowledge in order to be able to compete A possible duty to share data with rivals also brings to the forefront the interaction of competition law with data protection legislation considering that the required information may include personal data of individuals Building on the refusal to deal concept and using a multidisciplinary approach the analysis covers such issues and topics as the following data portability interoperability data as a competitive advantage or entry barrier in digital markets market definition and dominance with respect to data disruptive versus sustaining innovation role of intellectual property regimes economic trade off in essential facilities cases relationship of competition enforcement with data protection law and data related competition concerns in merger cases The author draws on a wealth of relevant material including EU and US decision making practice case law and policy documents as well as economic and empirical literature on the link between competition and innovation The book concludes with a proposed framework for the application of the essential facilities doctrine to potential forms of abuse of dominance relating to data In addition it makes suggestions as to how data protection interests can be integrated into competition policy An invaluable contribution to ongoing academic and policy discussions about how data related competition concerns should be addressed under competition law the analysis clearly demonstrates how existing competition tools for market definition and assessment of dominance can be applied to online platforms It will be of immeasurable value to the many jurists business persons and academics concerned with this very timely subject Advances in Dairy Products Francesco Conto, Matteo A. achieve the same global reach And if India can provide unique digital identification to 1 billion people in five years and thereby reduce corruption by billions of dollars why can't other countries replicate its success Indeed what's holding back countries from realizing the profound and transformational effects that digital technologies are supposed to deliver Two main reasons First nearly 60 percent of the world's population are still offline and can't participate in the digital economy in any meaningful way Second and more important the benefits of digital technologies can be offset by growing risks Startups can disrupt incumbents but not when vested interests and regulatory uncertainty obstruct competition and the entry of new firms Employment opportunities may be greater but not when the labor market is polarized The internet can be a platform for universal empowerment but not when it becomes a tool for state control and elite capture The World Development Report 2016 shows that while the digital revolution has forged ahead its analog complements the regulations that promote entry and competition the skills that enable workers to access and then leverage the new economy and the institutions that are accountable to citizens have not kept pace And when these analog complements to digital investments are absent the development impact can be disappointing What then should countries do They should formulate digital development strategies that are much broader than current information and communication technology ICT strategies They should create a policy and institutional environment for technology that fosters the greatest benefits In short they need to build a strong analog foundation to deliver digital dividends to everyone everywhere

Public Policy in International Economic Law Diane Desierto, 2015-02-19 States reject inequality when they choose to ratify the International Covenant on Economic Social and Cultural Rights ICESCR but to date the ICESCR has not yet figured prominently in the policy calculus behind States' international economic decisions This book responds to the modern challenge of operationalizing the ICESCR particularly in the context of States' decisions within international trade finance and investment Differentiating between public policy mechanisms and institutional functional mandates in the international trade finance and investment systems this book shows legal and policy gateways for States to feasibly translate their fundamental duties to respect protect and fulfil economic social and cultural rights into their trade finance and investment commitments agreements and contracts It approaches the problem of harmonizing social protection objectives under the ICESCR with a State's international economic treaty obligations from the designing and interpreting international treaty texts up to the institutional monitoring and empirical analysis of ICESCR compliance In examining public policy options the book takes into account around five decades of States' implementation of social protection commitments under the ICESCR its normative evolution through the UN Committee on Economic Social and Cultural Rights and the Committee's expanded fact finding and adjudicative competences under the Optional Protocol to the ICESCR as well as the critical dialectical and deliberative roles of diverse functional interpretive communities within international trade finance and investment law Ultimately the book shows how States' ICESCR commitments operate as the normative foundation of their trade finance and investment decisions
