Big Data, Algorithms and Food Safety Salvatore Sapienza, 2022-10-20 This book identifies the principles that should be applied when processing Big Data in the context of food safety risk assessments Food safety is a critical goal in the protection of individuals right to health and the flourishing of the food and feed market Big Data is fostering new applications capable of enhancing the accuracy of food safety risk assessments An extraordinary amount of information is analysed to detect the existence or predict the likelihood of future risks also by means of machine learning algorithms Big Data and novel analysis techniques are topics of growing interest for food safety agencies including the European Food Safety Authority EFSA This wealth of information brings with it both opportunities and risks concerning the extraction of meaningful inferences from data However conflicting interests and tensions among the parties involved are hindering efforts to find shared methods for steering the processing of Big Data in a sound transparent and trustworthy way While consumers call for more transparency food business operators tend to be reluctant to share informational assets This has resulted in a considerable lack of trust in the EU food safety system A recent legislative reform supported by new legal cases aims to restore confidence in the risk analysis system by reshaping the meaning of data ownership in this domain While this regulatory approach is being established breakthrough analytics techniques are encouraging thinking about the next steps in managing food safety data in the age of machine learning The book focuses on two core topics data ownership and data governance by evaluating how the regulatory framework addresses the challenges raised by Big Data and its analysis in an applied significant and overlooked domain To do so it adopts an interdisciplinary approach that considers both the technological advances and the policy tools adopted in the European Union while also assuming an ethical perspective when exploring potential solutions The conclusion puts forward a proposal an ethical blueprint for identifying the principles Security Accountability Fairness Explainability Transparency and Privacy to be observed when processing Big Data for food safety purposes including by means of machine learning Possible implementations are then discussed also in connection with two recent legislative proposals namely the Data Governance Act and the Artificial Intelligence Act

Agriculture-nutrition linkages, cooking-time, intra-household equality among women and children: Evidence from Tajikistan Hiroyuki Takeshima, Kamiljon Akramov, Allen Park, Jarilkasin Ilyasov, Tanzila Ergasheva, 2019-11-07 Household level agriculture nutrition linkage ANL tends to be strong in a rural subsistence setting with limited access to the food market In such a context markets for food processing services also may be imperfect and consequently a household's time investments in cooking may become important Using the primary data in Tajikistan we show that longer periods of time dedicated to cooking by women in the household often significantly enhance household level ANL Furthermore an increase in the diversity scale and efficiency of household production as well as longer cooking time can also reduce intra-household inequality in nutritional outcomes among women and children These effects are stronger in areas with lower nighttime light intensity and for households with lower values of cooking assets In a context where household level ANL is strong ANL may also depend on households self production of complementary inputs including cooking services This dependence reveals both unique opportunities for and vulnerabilities of ANL for the rural poor Status of Implementation of e-Agriculture in Central and Eastern Europe and Central Asia Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2018-07-23 Agriculture is becoming increasingly knowledge intensive farmers have to make more and more complex decisions on the use of their land the selection of the agricultural commodities they plant the choice of markets on which to sell their agricultural products and other key decisions that impact their livelihoods and that of society The development of ICTs is a major driver of economic growth It is also an accelerator for innovation and change FAO has been promoting the use of ICTs in agriculture and has focused on ICT innovation in improving agricultural production and value chains However innovation is an elusive combination of people processes and technologies Many projects put technology alone at the core of proposed solutions intended to address emerging and existing challenges but this is not a sustainable solution in many cases Recently FAO and the International Telecommunication Union have jointly prepared a National e Agriculture Strategy Guide which aims to help countries mainstream ICTs into agriculture and develop or revitalize e agriculture strategies in line with agricultural goals and priorities This paper is intended to assist policy makers and stakeholders of e agriculture in transition economies to map the policy and technological environment in their countries would show case e agriculture initiatives in Central and Eastern Europe and Central Asia and provide with recommendations on formulation of e agriculture strategies Your Library Is the Answer Christina T.
