Community-based Research with Vulnerable Populations Lesley Wood,2022-01-01 This book advocates for community based research with vulnerable populations within the field of higher education The chapters outline how research can democratize knowledge generation to make it more accessible and socially relevant and emphasizes the value of the lived and experiential knowledge of vulnerable and marginalized populations Rooted in a critique of the current practices of higher education that fail to support participatory and transformative research the research is structured at micro macro and meso levels to ultimately emancipate colonized thinking of stakeholders about power privilege and participation Focusing primarily on various contexts within the Global South the contributors argue that the time is ripe for community based research which combines the theoretical knowledge of the academy with the local experiential knowledge of those experiencing the consequences of social inequality to co construct knowledge for change

Research Handbook on Global Climate Constitutionalism Jordi Jaria-Manzano,Susana Borràs,2019-12-27 Climate change is causing traditional political and legal concepts to be revisited The emergence of a global polity through physical economic and social interaction demands global responses which should be founded upon new principles and which cannot simply be modelled on traditional constitutionalism centred on the nation state This Research Handbook explores how to build this climate constitutionalism at a global level starting from the narrative of Anthropocene and its implications for law It provides a critical approach to global environmental constitutionalism analysing the problems of sustainability and global equity which are entwined with the causes and consequences of climate change The Handbook explores how to develop constitutional discourses and strategies to address these issues and thereby tackle the negative effects of climate change whilst also advancing a more sustainable equitable and responsible global society

Long Past Slavery Catherine A. Stewart, 2016-02-05 From 1936 to 1939 the New Deal's Federal Writers Project collected life stories from more than 2 300 former African American slaves These narratives are now widely used as a source to understand the lived experience of those who made the transition from slavery to freedom But in this examination of the project and its legacy Catherine A Stewart shows it was the product of competing visions of the past as ex slaves memories of bondage emancipation and life as freedpeople were used to craft arguments for and against full inclusion of African Americans in society Stewart demonstrates how project administrators such as the folklorist John Lomax white and black interviewers including Zora Neale Hurston and the ex slaves themselves fought to shape understandings of black identity She reveals that some influential project employees were also members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy intent on memorializing the Old South Stewart places ex slaves at the center of debates over black citizenship to illuminate African Americans struggle to redefine their past as well as their future in the face of formidable opposition By shedding new light on a critically important episode in the history of race remembrance and the legacy of slavery in the United States Stewart compels readers to rethink a prominent archive used to construct that history
