Nuclear Power Reactors

As of 2000, there are 434 central station nuclear power reactors operating worldwide to produce 350,442 MWe of electrical power. Of this number, 252 are pressurized water reactors (PWRs), 92 are boiling water reactors (BWRs), 34 are gas-cooled reactors (GCRs) of all types, 39 are heavy water-cooled reactors of all types (mostly CANDUs), 15 are graphite-moderated light-water pressure tube reactors (RBMKs), and 2 are liquid-metal fast breeder reactors (LMFBRs). The general physics-related characteristics of such reactors are described in the following sections. To be quantitative, specific reactors that produce 900 to 1300 MWe (650 MWe in the case of CANDUs) were chosen, but it should be noted that reactors of each type can vary greatly in size and power output, so the numbers should be understood to be only representative. In addition to the central station power reactors mentioned above, there are more than 100 pressurized water naval propulsion reactors in the U.S. fleet (plus others in foreign fleets) and numerous research and special purpose reactors of various types worldwide.

Pressurized Water Reactors

Pressurized water reactors (PWRs) were first developed in the United States based on experience from the naval reactor program. The first commercial electric power-producing unit started operation at Shippingport, Pennsylvania in 1957. The PWR is now widely distributed worldwide. The basic structure of the PWR core is the approximately 20 cm  $\times$  20 cm  $\times$  4 m high fuel assembly shown in Fig. 7.1, consisting of an array of zircaloy-clad  $\text{UO}_2$  fuel pins, or rods, of about 1 cm diameter. The enrichment varies from about 2 to 4% or more, depending on the burnup objective. A typical fuel assembly may consist of a 17  $\times$  17 array of fuel pins of about 1 cm diameter. The coolant flows in an open lattice structure which permits some flow mixing and is under sufficient pressure that no boiling occurs under normal operation.

Long-term reactivity control is provided by adjustment of the boric acid content in the coolant. The soluble poison concentration decreases with fuel burnup to compensate fuel reactivity loss and must be reduced to compensate  $^{135}\text{Xe}$  and
