Teaching and Learning Science Judith Bennett, 2005-12-07 There is increasingly wide agreement among teachers researchers inspectors advisers and policy makers that both teaching and research will benefit from being brought closer together But how can this be achieved Hard pressed practitioners cannot be expected to review a constant flow of conference papers journals and other publications even if such items were accessibly written This unique book synthesizes relevant research findings for the professional practitioner and highlights their implications for the quality of teaching and learning Whether you are a teacher looking to enhance your practice or a researcher looking for a concise overview of or a researcher looking for a concise overview of the literature this book will be a valuable acquisition Science Education for Gifted Learners Keith S. Taber, 2007-04-13 Science is central to our modern technological society yet many of the most able pupils who could become the scientists of tomorrow turn away from science as soon as they have a choice in their studies Science is often seen to be difficult or boring and fails to engage or challenge those who are most suited to excel in scientific studies This book asks what classroom teachers can do to make sure that their science teaching is stimulating and challenging for their students Topics covered include what do we mean by gifted and able children gifted children that slip through the net challenging science through modelling asking questions in science exploring topical issues challenging science through talk after school enrichment Set in the wider context of debates about the provision for those labelled gifted and exceptionally able this book explores the meaning of these categories and considers what they may imply in such approaches as setting streaming acceleration and enrichment Chemistry Nuffield Foundation. Project Team, 1970 The British National Bibliography, 1968 Biology and Human Affairs, 1970 Relevant Chemistry Education Ingo Eilks, Avi Hofstein, 2015-07-22 This book is aimed at chemistry teachers teacher educators chemistry education researchers and all those who are interested in increasing the relevance of chemistry teaching and learning as well as students perception of it The book consists of 20 chapters Each chapter focuses on a certain issue related to the relevance of chemistry education These chapters are based on a recently suggested model of the relevance of science education encompassing individual societal and vocational relevance its present and future implications as well as its intrinsic and extrinsic aspects Two highly distinguished chemical educators Ingo Eilks and AviHofstein have brought together 40 internationally renowned colleagues from 16 countries to offer an authoritative view of chemistry teaching today Between them the authors in 20 chapters give an exceptional description of the current state of chemical education and signpost the future in both research and in the classroom There is special emphasis on the many attempts to enthuse students with an understanding of the central science chemistry which will be helped by having an appreciation of the role of the science in today s world Themes which transcend all education such as collaborative work communication skills attitudes inquiry learning and teaching and problem solving are covered in detail and used in the context of teaching modern chemistry The book is divided into four parts which describe the individual the societal the vocational and economic and the non formal dimensions and the editors bring all the disparate leads into a coherent narrative that will be highly satisfying to experienced and new researchers and to teachers with the daunting task of teaching such an intellectually demanding subject Just a brief glance at the index and the references will convince anyone interested in chemical education that this book is well worth studying it is scholarly and readable and has tackled the most important issues in chemical education today and in the foreseeable future Professor David Waddington Emeritus Professor in Chemistry Education University of York United Kingdom
