Passions of the Christ F. Scott Spencer,2021-05-04 Senior New Testament scholar F Scott Spencer focuses on a neglected area in the study of Jesus and the Gospels the emotional life of Jesus This book offers a fresh reading of the Gospels through the lens of Jesus's emotions: anger, grief, disgust, surprise, compassion, and joy. These emotions motivate Jesus's mission and reveal to Gospel readers what matters most to him. Amid his passions, Jesus forges his character as God's incarnate Messiah, wholly embodied and emotionally engaged with others and thoroughly embedded in the surrounding environment. Race, Identity and Work Ethel L. Mickey, Adia Harvey Wingfield, 2018-10-29 This volume examines the connections between race and work, focusing on how racial minorities deal with identity in the workplace, how workers of color encounter exclusion, marginalization, and sidelining, and strategies minority workers use to combat and change patterns of workplace inequality. The Evolution of Human Wisdom Celia Deane-Drummond, Agustín Fuentes, 2017-10-18 This volume addresses key questions about the puzzle of human origins by focusing on a topic that is largely unexplored thus far: namely, the evolution of human wisdom. How can we best understand the human capacity for wisdom, where did it come from, and how did it emerge? It explores lines of convergence and divergence between Christian theology and evolutionary anthropology in its search to identify different aspects of wisdom. Critical to this discussion are the philosophical difficulties that arise when two very different methodological approaches to the manner of humans becoming wise are brought together. The relative importance and significance of human language is another area of intense debate in defining the meaning of wisdom and its expression. How far, and to what extent, does a theologically informed wisdom discourse push evolutionary anthropology to formulate new questions, and vice versa? This volume shows that there is no simple consonance between evolutionary anthropology and theology. Yet each discipline has much to learn from the other; the authors are in agreement that even in the midst of an awareness of dissonance and some tension, there can still be mutual respect. The goal of this book is to begin to develop a transdisciplinary approach to the evolution of human wisdom, where each discipline is challenged to ask questions in a new way. This volume tackles the relationship between theology and science in a fresh way by focusing on a specific theme: wisdom, that is, equally generative for both theology and evolutionary anthropology. Automation and Utopia John Danaher, 2019-09-24 Automating technologies threaten to usher in a workless future. But this can be a good thing if we play our cards right. Human obsolescence is imminent. The factories of the future will be dark, staffed by armies of tireless robots. The hospitals of the future will have fewer doctors, depending instead on cloud-based AI to diagnose patients and recommend treatments. The homes of the future will anticipate our wants and needs and provide all the entertainment, food, and distraction we could ever desire. To many, this is a depressing prognosis: an image of civilization replaced by its machines. But what if an automated future is something to be welcomed rather than feared? Work is a source of misery and oppression for most people, so shouldn't we do what we can to hasten its demise? Automation and Utopia makes the case for a world in which, free from need or want, we can spend our time inventing and playing games and exploring virtual realities that are more deeply engaging and absorbing than any we have experienced before, allowing us to achieve idealized forms of human flourishing. The idea that we should give up and retreat to the virtual may seem shocking.

even distasteful But John Danaher urges us to embrace the possibilities of this new existence The rise of automating technologies presents a utopian moment for humankind providing both the motive and the means to build a better future
