

A scientist is researching whether or not birds of prey exposed to pollutants lay eggs with thinner shells. He collects a random sample of egg shells from each of 6 different nests and tests for pollutant level, p , and measures the thinning of the shell, t . The results are shown in the table below.

p	3	8	30	25	15	12
t	1	3	9	10	5	6

[You may use $\sum p^2 = 1967$ and $\sum pt = 694$]

- Draw a scatter diagram on the axes on page 7 to represent these data. (2)
- Explain why a linear regression model may be appropriate to describe the relationship between p and t . (1)
- Calculate the value of S_{pp} and the value of S_{pt} . (4)
- Find the equation of the regression line of t on p , giving your answer in the form $t = a + bp$. (4)
- Plot the point (\bar{p}, \bar{t}) and draw the regression line on your scatter diagram. (2)

The scientist reviews similar studies and finds that pollutant levels above 16 are likely to result in the death of a chick soon after hatching.

- Estimate the minimum thinning of the shell that is likely to result in the death of a chick. (2)

Human Frailties Ronald J. Burke,Suzy Fox,2016-05-13 Every day we hear stories about the consequences of human frailties for individuals their families and friends and their organizations Some of these stories are about alcohol and drug addiction and other harmful lifestyle choices but human frailty also leads to all kinds of unethical and illegal behaviour Individuals are convicted of bribery and corruption price fixing theft and fraud sexual harassment and abuse of authority Politicians fiddle their expenses sports people cheat and fix matches and school and university students and teachers cheat to enhance exam results Studies have shown that business students cheat more than others and efforts to teach ethical behaviour in business schools make little difference The media who bring us stories of others frailties themselves engage in unethical and illegal conduct in pursuit of an edge over their rivals The contributions to this latest addition to Gower's Psychological and Behavioural Aspects of Risk Series place the spotlight on individuals their behavioural choices and the consequences that follow for theirs and others lives and careers The conclusion is that people do have choices and options and that whilst there are no easy or quick fixes in addressing self limiting behaviours successful avoidance of the worst outcomes can be achieved This book provides guidance on the practical steps that need to be taken in order to gain a sense of proportion of what is important and of how we are doing if we are to address our frailties and stop making unethical choices in reducing petroleum use has led to the rapid development of the biofuel industry over the past decade or so. However, there is increasing concern over how current food-based biofuels affect both food security and the environment. Second-generation biofuels, however, use widely available agricultural crops. Climate vulnerability assessment methodology Lotten Wiréhn, 2017-11-27. Food security and climate change mitigation are crucial missions for the agricultural sector and for global work on sustainable development. Concurrently, agricultural production is directly dependent on climatic conditions, making climate change adaptation strategies essential for the agricultural sector. There is consequently a need for researchers, planners, and practitioners to better understand how, why, and to what extent agriculture is vulnerable to climate change. Such analyses involve challenges in relation to the complex social-ecological character of the agricultural system and to the multiple conceptualizations and approaches used in analysing vulnerability. The aim of this thesis is to identify how vulnerability assessments can be used to represent climate-related vulnerability in Nordic agriculture in order to advance the methodological development of indicator-based and geographic visualization methods. The following research questions are addressed: i) How can agricultural vulnerability to climate change and variability in the Nordic countries be characterized? ii) How do selection, definitions, and emphases of indicators influence how vulnerability is assessed? iii) How do estimates of vulnerability vary depending on the methods used in assessments? iv) How can geographic visualization be applied in integrated vulnerability assessments? This thesis analyses and applies various vulnerability assessment approaches in the context of Nordic agriculture. This thesis demonstrates that various methods for composing vulnerability indices result in significantly different outcomes despite using the same set of indicators. A conceptual framework for geographic visualization approaches to vulnerability assessments was developed for the purpose of creating transparent and interactive assessments regarding the indicating variables, methods, and assumptions applied, i.e., opening up the black box of composite indices. This framework served as the foundation for developing the AgroExplore geographic visualization tool. The tool enables the user to interactively select, categorize, and weight indicators as well as to explore the data and the spatial patterns of the indicators and indices. AgroExplore was used in focus group settings with experts in the Swedish agricultural sector. The visualization supported dialogue; results confirm the difficulty of selecting and constructing indicators, including different perceptions of what indicators actually indicate, the assumption of linear relationships between the indicators and vulnerability, and consequently that the direction of the relationship is predefined for each indicator. This thesis further points at the inherent complexity of agricultural challenges and opportunities in the context of climate change as such. It is specifically emphasized that agricultural adaptation policies and measures involve trade-offs between various environmental and socio-economic objectives and that their implementation could furthermore entail unintended consequences, i.e., potential maladaptive outcomes. Nevertheless, it proved difficult to validate indicators due to, e.g., matters of scale and data availability. While heavy precipitation and other extreme weather events are perceived as the most relevant drivers of climate vulnerability by the agricultural experts participating in this study statistical analyses of historical data identified few significant relationships between crop yield losses and heavy precipitation In conclusion this thesis contributes to the method development of composite indices and indicator based vulnerability assessment A key conclusion is that assessments are method dependent and that indicator selection is related to aspects such as the system s spatial scale and location as well as to indicator thresholds and defined relationships with vulnerability recognizing the contextual dependency of agricultural vulnerability Consequently given the practicality of indicator based methods I stress with this thesis that future vulnerability studies must take into account and be transparent about the principles and limitations of indicator based assessment methods in order to ensure their usefulness validity and relevance for guiding adaptation strategies
