Researching the Military Helena Carreiras, Celso Castro, Sabina Frederic, 2016-03-02 Researching the Military focuses on the experiences of researchers who study the military around the world. It explores the historical, social, institutional, and personal factors that frame research and scrutinize the way knowledge in this area impacts society and policy. More than merely analyzing research experiences yet necessarily including them, it is also about the experiences of researchers, their position with regard to the object of their studies, the institutional context where they work, and the way their research impacts the academic and policy making fields in the respective countries. The common theme to the various chapters is reflexivity, a conscious effort at addressing the conditions of research and the position of the researcher and the research participants in that interface. By collecting diverse experiences of researchers from across the world, this volume aims to enhance reflexivity in the field of military studies and to encourage the exchange of knowledge between the academic field and the military arena. This book will be of much interest to students of military studies, research methods, sociology, social anthropology, and security studies in general.

Propaganda and Public Relations in Military Recruitment Brendan Maartens, Thomas Bivins, 2020-11-19 This book represents the first international investigation of military recruitment, advertising, public relations, and propaganda. Comprised of eleven case studies that explore mobilisation work in Africa, the Americas, Asia, and Europe, it covers more than a hundred years of recent history with chapters on the First and Second World Wars, the Cold War, and the present day. The book explores such promotion in countries both large and small and in times of both war and peace, with readers gaining an insight into the different strategies and tactics used to motivate men, women, and occasionally even children to serve and fight in many parts of the world. Readers will also learn about the crucial but little-known role of commercial advertising, public relations, and media professionals in the production and distribution of recruitment promotion. This book, the first of its kind to be published, will explore that role and in the process address two questions that are central to studies of media and conflict: how do militaries encourage civilians to join up, and are they successful in doing so? It is a multi-disciplinary project intended for a diverse academic audience, including postgraduate students exploring aspects of war, propaganda, and public opinion, and researchers working across the domains of history, communications studies, conflict studies, psychology, and philosophy.
