

The Sadler Committee Report (1832)

Excerpts from the Original Electronic Text at the web site of the Victorian Web (Laura Del Cello).

Introduction by Laura Del Cello: In 1832 Michael Sadler secured a parliamentary investigation of conditions in the textile factories and he sat as a tradesman on the committee. The evidence gathered here is taken from the large body published in the committee's report and is representative rather than exceptional. It will be observed that the questions are frequently leading; this reflects Sadler's knowledge of the sort of information that the committee were to hear and his purpose in bringing it out. This report stands out as one of three great reports on the life of the industrial class—the two others being that of the Ashley Commission on the mines and Chadwick's report on sanitary problems. The immediate effect of the investigation and the report was the passage of the Act of 1833 limiting hours of employment for women and children.

Evidence Given Before the Sadler Committee

Joshua Drake, called in, and examined.

Now say you would prefer moderate labour and lower wages; are you pretty comfortable upon your present wages?

—I have no wages, but ten days a week at present; but when I am working at some jobs we can make a little, and at others we do very poorly.

When a child gets to, a week, does that go much towards its subsistence?

—No, it will not keep it as it should do.

When they get to, or 7s. when they were piecemen, if they reduced the hours of labour, would they not get less?

—They would get a halfpenny a day less, but I would rather have less wages and less work.

Do you receive any parish assistance?

—No.

Why do you allow your children to go to work at those places where they are ill-treated or over-worked?

—Necessity compels a man that has children to let them work.

Then you would not allow your children to go to those factories under the present system, if it was not from necessity?

—No.

Supposing there was a law passed to limit the hours of labour to eight hours a day, or something of that sort, of course you are aware that a manufacturer could not afford to pay them the same wages?

—No, I do not suppose that they would, but at the same time I would rather have it, and I believe that it would bring me into employ; and if I lost, let, a day from my children's work, and I got half-a-crown myself, it would be better.

How would it get you into employ?

—By finding more employment at the machines, and work being more regularly spread about, and divided amongst the people at large. One man is now regularly turned off into the street, whilst another man is running day and night.
