Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not participate in any physical activity during the study. The training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 10-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions were performed at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The HR and HRR were measured at the beginning and end of the study. The results showed that the training group had a significantly higher HR and HRR at the end of the study compared to the control group. The HR increased from 140 to 150 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 10 to 15 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and HRR of sedentary middle-aged men.

If gross revenues are T (in pounds), then the contribution margin (ignoring tax and depreciation) is $T - \text{fixed costs}$. If the contribution margin is Q (in £), then the contribution margin ratio is Q/T (in %).

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or natural light at night. To reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption, it is recommended that the amount of artificial light be reduced to the lowest level possible.
- Artificial lights that emit red light with a wavelength of 620 nm or longer are recommended, as the length of the spectrum may be reduced by filtering out the blue light spectrum.
- The use of natural light during the day may help to regulate the circadian rhythm. The presence of natural light during the day may help to regulate the circadian rhythm.
- Natural light is not recommended for the use of artificial light.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. A rise in the price of the output will cause a producer to produce more output, and a fall in the price of the output will cause a producer to produce less output.
