Restless Infections Jay Pather, 2025-06 Restless Infections is an innovative collection of critical essays exploring artistic interventions in urban spaces focusing on place making and the politics of space in post colonial South Africa. The title refers to Cape Town's popular Infecting the City public art festival and the persistent state of restlessness of a city still grappling with the legacies of colonialism, inequality and racial segregation. The concept of restlessness provides a critical tool for understanding public space in a country desiring economic and political stability as expressed through transient art forms such as Santu Mofokeng's billboard photography. The volume shifts the focus of public art discourse in South Africa from static forms like monuments and statues to dynamic temporary interventions offering fresh perspectives on public art as an interactive community engaged practice. The interventions engage with protest, public intimacy, audience interaction and the disrupted topography of apartheid cities. Through an examination of seminal artworks, contributors address diverse forms of expression that range from site specific performances, immersive installations, film and photography to online performances. They introduce new perspectives on public sphere performance such as Khanyisile Mbongwa's re-imagining of township alleyways for public encounters and Mbongeni Mtshali's study of everyday performances that challenge colonial and neo-colonial spatial organisation. The book is divided into three sections: The Restless City, Public Art for Multiple Publics and Land Home Belonging. It features both critical essays and visual documentation of the powerful, often temporary public artworks providing readers with an opportunity to explore cutting edge artistic practices that tackle global issues like inequality, segregation and public space reclamation. Restless Infections reads public spheres through a multi and interdisciplinary lens and makes a strong contribution to our understanding of the complexities of public art in South Africa. It will appeal to academics, students and practitioners across the fields of art, cultural studies and social justice. The Coming of Neo-Feudalism Joel Kotkin, 2023-01-10 Following a remarkable epoch of greater dispersion of wealth and opportunity, we are inexorably returning towards a more feudal era marked by greater concentration of wealth and property, reduced upward mobility, demographic stagnation and increased dogmatism. If the last seventy years saw a massive expansion of the middle class, not only in America but in much of the developed world, today that class is declining and a new, more hierarchical society is emerging. The new class structure resembles that of Medieval times. At the apex of the new order are two classes: a reborn clerical elite, the clerisy, which dominates the upper part of the professional ranks, universities, media and culture; and a new aristocracy led by tech oligarchs with unprecedented wealth and growing control of information. These two classes correspond to the old French First and Second Estates. Below these two classes lies what was once called the Third Estate. This includes the yeomanry, which is made up largely of small businesspeople, minor property owners, skilled workers and private sector oriented professionals. Ascendant for much of modern history, this class is in decline while those below them, the new Serfs, grow in numbers, a vast expanding propertyless population. The trends are mounting, but we can still reverse them if people understand what is actually occurring and have the capability to oppose them From Thinker to Doer: Creativity, Innovation, Entrepreneurship, Maker, and Venture Capital Yenchun Jim Wu, Chih-Hung Yuan, Mu-Yen Chen, 2021-04-21
