School District Leadership Matters Bruce Sheppard, Jean Brown, David Dibbon, 2009-03-08 School District Leadership Matters challenges policy makers administrators and academics in the field of educational leadership to reassess their traditional approaches to learning working and planning The authors believe that government restructuring standards based reforms and centrally imposed strategic planning have been painfully ineffective As a consequence student learning has become increasingly superficial and inauthentic This book bridges the traditional divide between the generalizations of social science theory on the one hand and the world of educational practice on the other It argues that a more promising approach to education reform is through effective school district leadership Sheppard Brown and Dibbon draw on their collective experience both as educational leaders and researchers of leadership having spent five years researching and working in one school district Here they show how a district superintendent can successfully navigate the paradoxes and challenges of facilitating collaborative leadership in a school district with a traditionally hierarchical organizational structure As a conclusion to their work the authors highlight what they call five recognitions that deepen readers understanding of school district leadership They illuminate too ways that senior level practitioners can apply theory to practice in order to break down the traditional hierarchical bureaucracies that inhibit learning and create professional learning communities School District Leadership Matters urges researchers graduate students practitioners and policymakers to focus on improving authentic learning for all students and argues that the best hope rests with effective school district leadership This empirically based yet practical book provides new insights and questions for academic researchers and will inspire policy makers and practitioners to imagine what could be and to work towards it

Complexity, Emergence, and Causality in Applied Linguistics Jérémie Bouchard,2021-11-23 This book suggests that applied linguistics research is inherently concerned with complexity emergence and causality and because of this it also requires a robust social ontology The book identifies and unpacks a range of conceptual issues in applied linguistics from a social realist perspective and provides a critique of successionism and interpretivism as two dominant and enduring empiricist tendencies in the field From this critique it considers the emergence of complex dynamic system theory as viable yet not entirely unproblematic conceptual sophistication of current applied linguistics research Although the growing popularity of complex dynamic system theory is undeniable and understandable this book argues that its integration within a social realist ontology is necessary for further developments in the field The book will be of interest to applied linguists and social scientists interested in language related issues including language learning and teaching language change language policy and planning bilingualism multilingualism and language and identity Handbook of Interpersonal Commitment and Relationship Stability Jeffrey M. Adams,Warren H. Jones,1999-09-30 A fundamental assumption underlying the formation of our most important relationships is that they will persist indefinitely into the future As an acquaintanceship turns into a friendship for example both members of this newly formed interpersonal bond are likely to expect that their interactions will become increasingly frequent diverse and intimate over time This expectation is perhaps most apparent in romantically involved couples who through a variety of verbal and symbolic means make explicit pledges to a long lasting relationship In either case it is clear that these relationships represent something valuable to the individuals involved and are pursued with great enthusiasm Virtually all close relationships are formed within the context of mutually rewarding interactions and or strong physical attraction between partners Friends and romantically involved couples alike are drawn to one another because of similarity of attitudes interests and personality and quite simply because they enjoy one another's company This enjoyment coupled with the novelty that characterizes new relationships almost makes the continuation of the relationship a foregone conclusion As relationships progress however their novelty fades conflicts may arise between partners negative life events may occur and the satisfaction that previously characterized the relationships may diminish Ecotourism Ralf Buckley,2009 Focusing on fundamental ecotourism concepts this broad based textbook provides a basis for studies into environmental based tourism It covers key topics such as the management economics and potential environmental impacts both positive and negative of this popular and growing sector Publisher description An Introduction to the Nature and Functions of Language Howard Jackson,Peter Stockwell,2011-01-27
