education providing both the theoretical background and the practical tools to implement this approach. The situational context of education includes linguistic, economic, social, cultural, and political factors as well as conditions such as students' personal characteristics, family support, and quality of instruction. All of these factors influence the lives of students and their academic performance and contribute in many ways, some subtle and indirect, to making the educational experience more or less difficult for different students. The premise of the book is that objective study of the situational context of education by both students and teachers is beneficial because it leads to a more realistic view of how to facilitate students' progress in school. Designed as a text for graduate courses for preservice and in-service teachers working with students in bilingual, ESL, mainstream, and special education classrooms, the goal is to engage readers in learning not only from the literature but also from studying the situational contexts of their own students. The focus here is on the factors that affect language minority and immigrant students in the United States, but the framework is equally powerful for work with student populations in other social contexts. The Introduction includes an overview of the theory behind the study of the situational context of education, and the implementation of this approach describes the context of the pilot lessons included in the book and explains how to use the lessons detailed in later chapters. Chapters 2-6 focus on different factors in the situational context of education: linguistic, economic, social, cultural, and political. A three-part structure is used: Classroom Implementation (a rich description of one lesson in a real classroom), Context Variables (a theoretical explanation of the specific factor the chapter addresses, providing the research basis for the sample lesson objectives), and Doing Analysis of the Context (several sample lessons for implementation). The lessons are addressed to the teacher with detailed ideas on how to carry out the lesson and evaluate the students' understanding of the situational context. Five Appendices provide helpful resources for the implementation of the lessons: an Annotated bibliography of relevant K-12 children's literature, Instructional Approaches, Scoring Rubrics for Content Objectives, Guidelines for a Contrastive Study of Situational Context, and Lesson Template. The lessons have been thoroughly field tested with students and teachers. Because these lessons work on multiple levels, Situational Context of Education: A Window Into the World of Bilingual Learners benefits students from first grade through preservice and in-service teachers in university courses. Teachers get to know their students and their predicaments within the social context of the United States, and at the same time, the lesson activities have a great impact on the students in their classes. All are helped to achieve academically while gaining awareness of situational factors affecting their lives.

Student and Teacher Writing Motivational Beliefs Steve Graham, Gary A. Troia, Gustaf Bernhard Uno Skar, 2024-06-21. The study of students' motivational beliefs about writing and how such beliefs influence writing has increased since the publication of John Hays' 1996 model of writing. This model emphasized that writers' motivational beliefs influence how and what they write. Likewise, increased attention has been devoted in recent years to how teachers' motivational beliefs about writing, especially their efficacy to teach writing, impact how writing is taught and how students progress as writers. As a result, there is a need to bring together in a Research Topic studies that examine the role and influence of writing beliefs Historically the psychological study of writing has focused on what students write or the processes they apply when writing Equally important but investigated less often are studies examining how writing is taught and how teachers efforts contribute to students writing What has been less prominent in the psychological study of writing are the underlying motivational beliefs that drive or inhibit students writing or serve as catalysts for teachers actions in the classroom when teaching writing This Research Topic will bring together studies that examine both students and teachers motivational beliefs about teaching writing This will include studies examining the operation of such beliefs how they develop cognitive and affective correlates how writing motivational beliefs can be fostered and how they are related to students writing achievement By focusing on both students and teachers beliefs the Research Topic will provide a more nuanced and broader picture of the role of motivation beliefs in writing and writing instruction This Research Topic includes papers that address students motivational beliefs about writing teachers motivational beliefs about writing or teaching writing Students motivational beliefs about writing include beliefs about the value and utility of writing writing competence attitudes toward writing goal orientation motives for writing identity epistemological underpinnings writing and attributions for success failure as examples Teacher motivational include these same judgements as well as beliefs about their preparation and their students competence and progress as writers to provide additional examples This Research Topic is interested in papers that examine how such beliefs operate develop are related to other cognitive and affective variables how they are impacted by instruction and how they are related to students writing performance Submitted studies can include original research both quantitative qualitative or mixed methods meta analysis and reviews of the literature

Teach for Authentic Engagement Lauren Porosoff, 2023-07-24 Finding meaning vitality and community is the purpose of engagement and school itself Authentic engagement is a choice students make every day to bring themselves to their learning work and relationships rather than simply go through the motions of school It means sharing experiences asking questions trying new things making mistakes and allowing themselves to be seen heard and cared for It s an active choice that can lead to tremendous growth and satisfaction In Teach for Authentic Engagement Lauren Porosoff shows how to design instruction that lets students with diverse interests strengths needs identities and values connect to their learning Included are strategies tools and classroom anecdotes that help students Engage with the content so it becomes a source of meaning in their lives Engage with their work so it becomes a source of vitality Engage with each other so the class becomes a source of community It takes intellectual and emotional effort to teach in a way that fosters authentic engagement But when students feel connected to the content they engage with their work And when they feel like their learning matters they use that learning to understand and respect each other
