Pco Report On The Public Service:

Speaking Truth to Canadians about Their Public Service Donald J. Savoie, 2024-09-10 The federal public service plays a vital role in Canada's development by helping to shape public policies and deliver programs and services to Canadians. Speaking Truth to Canadians about Their Public Service provides a comprehensive review of the challenges confronting the public service, how the relationship between politicians and career officials has evolved in recent years, and what motivates public servants. Donald Savoie calls on Canadians and their politicians to consider what they want from their federal public service. Answering this question requires a fresh look at the government's traditional accountability requirements, how policies are shaped, and how government programs and services are delivered. It also requires a review of ambitious modernization and reform measures launched over the past forty years to make the public service more accommodating to political direction and to improve program delivery. Dividing federal public servants into two groups: those who write policy and those who deliver programs and services, the book establishes who has the upper hand. This division sheds new light on the theories that seek to explain the attitudes and behaviours of career government officials. Amid increasingly strong signs that the public service is in need of a reset, Speaking Truth to Canadians about Their Public Service concludes with practical recommendations to assist Canadians and their politicians in defining what they want their public service to be.

The Innovation System of the Public Service of Canada OECD, 2018-11-20 Governments today are confronted with a complex array of interconnected problems: increased citizen expectations and fiscal constraints. Public Branding and Marketing Staci M. Zavattaro, 2021-07-21 This edited volume details public branding and marketing from a global comparative perspective. Place branding and marketing practices are now prominent in cities, states, nations, regions, and organizations all over the world. While disciplines such as hospitality, management, tourism, marketing, and business marketing have made inroads into understanding the intricacies of place branding, research in public administration and policy is still emerging. This volume fills that research gap. Including accounts from both the academic and practitioner communities, this book bridges the academic-practitioner divide and provides a holistic account of branding and marketing in public organizations, as well as immediate application and lessons learned. The book takes an explicit public administration approach, focusing on a wide range of topics such as branding, leadership, co-creation, stakeholder engagement, education, non-profit marketing, and branding and city administration. The book is divided into four sections. Section I highlights the process of developing and communicating public branding and marketing efforts. Section II focuses specifically on how social media and other digital technologies are used to communicate and evaluate place branding strategies. Section III centers on branding at the local government level. Section IV highlights how various stakeholder groups come together or not when participating in strategic branding efforts. Presenting various methodologies approaches and implications of place branding and marketing across differing social cultural political and economic conditions this book will be of use to scholars and students in public administration tourism studies and business administration as well as professionals and practitioners in the public branding and marketing field Annual Report of the Public Service Commission, Second District New York (State). Whatever Happened to the Music Teacher? Donald J. Savoie, 2013-03-01 Thirty years ago Anglo-American politicians set out to make the public sector look like the private sector. These reforms continue today, ultimately seeking to empower elected officials to shape policies and pushing public servants to manage operations in the same manner as their private sector counterparts. In Whatever Happened to the Music Teacher, Donald Savoie provides a nuanced account of how the Canadian federal government makes decisions. Savoie argues that the traditional role of public servants advising governments on policy has been turned on its head and that evidence-based policy making is no longer valued as it once was. Policy making has become a matter of opinion. Google searches, focus groups, and public opinion surveys, where a well-connected lobbyist can provide any answers politicians wish to hear, are the result. Public servants have lost their way and are uncertain about how they should assess management performance, how they should generate policy advice, how they should work with their political leaders, and how they should speak truth to political power even within their own departments. Savoie demonstrates how recent management reforms in government have caused a steep rise in the overhead cost of government as well as how the notion that public administration could be made to operate like the private sector has been misguided and costly to taxpayers. Abandoning textbook discussions of government and public service, Whatever Happened to the Music Teacher is a realistic portrayal of how policy decisions are made and how actors and institutions interact with one another and exposes the complexities and contradictions present in Canadian politics and governance.

Collaboration in Public Services Andrew Gray, 2003 The International Group for Policy and Program Evaluation (INTEVAL) serves as a forum for scholars and practitioners of public policy to discuss ideas and developments as a community dedicated to enhancing the contribution of evaluation to government. From the group's studies has emerged a concern with the impact of public management reforms. Collaboration in Public Services examines collaboration in the delivery of public policies and identifies the challenges for policy and program evaluation. Written by a mix of academics, program managers, evaluators, and auditors, this volume explores the forms and challenges of collaboration in different national contexts. Chapter 1 introduces the notion and manifestations of collaboration and discusses emerging issues. Chapter

2 examines partnerships and networks of public service delivery Chapter 3 drawing on Dutch and British data reveals the QUANGO as both a collaborative end and means Chapter 4 analyzes Israel's push to enhance collaboration with voluntary organizations Chapter 5 examines the Canadian and Danish experiences Chapter 6 suggests that the creation of markets to improve quality has not been totally successful at least in Nordic countries Chapter 7 suggests that traditional service values such as trust and parliamentary accountability are challenged by the complexity of collaboration but using illustrations from Canada and other OECD countries argues that results based governance can increase trust flexibility and empowerment Chapter 8 demonstrates from Dutch and Canadian experiences that auditor responses to collaborative delivery tend to overlook traditional roles as guardians of accountability on behalf of parliaments Chapter 9 deliberates the efficacy of programs involving multiple partners Chapter 10 discusses the lessons and challenges of evaluation and collaborative government Andrew Gray is emeritus professor of public sector management University of Durham and deputy editor of Public Money and Management Bill Jenkins is professor of public policy and management at The University of Kent and deputy editor of Public Administration Frans Leeuw is chief review officer the Netherlands Inspectorate for Education and professor of sociology at Utrecht University John Mayne is a principal with the Office of the Auditor General of Canada
