Investment Frontier John D. Haeger, 1981-01-01 The American West did not grow in isolation from the East On the contrary New York financiers and other eastern entrepreneurs were crucial to America's western economic development providing the necessary capital and expertise to transform the West into a productive part of the nation's economy This thesis is powerfully demonstrated by John Denis Haeger in this study concerning the Old Northwest the present day states of Ohio Michigan Indiana Illinois and Wisconsin during the years 1815 1840 The result of years of research in manuscript collections and government documents the book provides a comprehensive picture of early land speculators examining their investments in farm lands town lots banks and transportation improvements as well as their influence on western businessmen and institutions It also explores their political and economic affairs on the East Coast since these matters dramatically affected the scope of their western investments Historians generalizations about nonresident investors or eastern speculators have previously assumed a common type and business method when in fact easterners possessed varying economic goals and utilized different business strategies To demonstrate this Haeger compares and contrasts the promoter Charles Butler and the conservative speculators Isaac and Arthur Bronson key figures among New York's financial elite whose careers and strategies are for the first time described in detail The activities of these investment pioneers whose every move was calculated to return profits challenge the traditional images of westward expansion as a largely unplanned and spontaneous movement of people and capital SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP MOTIVATION SORIN BLAGA, 2020-01-01 This research enriches social entrepreneurship motivation theory by suggesting that whichever entrepreneurial path is chosen extrinsic and intrinsic motivations apply yet appear to have different weightings in stimulating intentions to pursue entrepreneurship as well as being inversely related

An Introduction to Population Geographies Holly R. Barcus, Keith Halfacree, 2017-09-01 An Introduction to Population Geographies provides a foundation to the incredibly diverse topical and interesting field of twenty first century population geography It establishes the substantive concerns of the subdiscipline acknowledges the sheer diversity of its approaches key concepts and theories and engages with the resulting major areas of academic debate that stem from this richness Written in an accessible style and assuming little prior knowledge of topics covered yet drawing on a wide range of diverse academic literature the book's particular originality comes from its extended definition of population geography that locates it firmly within the multiple geographies of the life course. Consequently issues such as childhood and adulthood, family dynamics, ageing, everyday mobilities, morbidity and differential ability assume a prominent place alongside the classic population geography triumvirate of births, migrations and deaths. This broader framing of the field allows the book to address more holistically aspects of lives across space often provided little attention in current textbooks. Particular note is given to how these lives are shaped through hybrid social, biological and individual arenas of differential life course experience. By engaging with traditional quantitative perspectives and newer qualitative insights the authors engage students from the quantitative macro scale of population to the micro individual scale. Aimed at higher level undergraduate and graduate students this introductory text provides a well developed pedagogy including case studies that illustrate theory, concepts and issues.

Regional Resilience, Economy and Society Christine Tamásy, Javier Revilla Diez, 2016-04-08. There has been a great deal of restructuring of rural places and communities under globalisation highlighting the interaction of local and global actors to produce new hybrid socio-economic relations. Recent research highlights the heterogeneity of globalisation in which rural places are different to each other but also different to how they were in the past. Bringing together an interdisciplinary team of academics and comparative case studies from Europe, West and East and Asia, this book explores and discusses opportunities and challenges associated with globalising rural places and identifies possibilities for policy and practical intervention by rural development actors. Special attention is paid to multi-scalar processes through which rural places are reshaped through globalisation. Taking a geographical approach, the book produces new critical work on the interdependence between globalisation and rural spaces. It is organised into five sections. Part I focuses on Global Rural Linkages showing the multifaceted interrelation between actors at different geographical scales and demonstrating that globalisation is not only external to rural spaces. Part II on Rural Entrepreneurship and Labour Markets explores the potential of business start-ups in rural spaces which are not only necessity driven. Part III Rural Innovation and Learning shows that rural places are also places for innovation and learning. Part IV on Rural Policies and Governance argues that regional policies for rural places should promote side activities to maintain social capital and that regional policy should take a more integrative perspective between urban and rural spaces in order to explore complementary development paths. The concluding chapter New Approaches to Rural Spaces discusses new approaches to globalising rural places in relation to the preceding chapters published in this book.
