

FOSSIL FUEL USE

Fossil Fuel Use Lab

Background information:

Fossil fuels, such as petroleum, coal, and natural gas, are formed from the remains of ancient plants and animals that lived millions of years ago. These fuels are non-renewable resources, meaning they cannot be replaced once they are used. Fossil fuels are the primary source of energy for most of the world's energy needs, including electricity, transportation, and industrial processes. However, the use of fossil fuels has led to significant environmental problems, including global warming, air pollution, and the depletion of natural resources. As a result, many countries are looking for alternative sources of energy, such as solar, wind, and hydroelectric power, to reduce their dependence on fossil fuels.

Workshop Physics Activity Guide Module 3 Priscilla W. Laws, David P.

Jackson, Brett J. Pearson, 2024-03-06 The Workshop Physics Activity Guide is a set of student workbooks designed to serve as the foundation for a two semester calculus based introductory physics course. It consists of four Modules with a total of 28 units that interweave text materials with activities that include prediction, qualitative observation, explanation, equation derivation, mathematical modeling, quantitative experiments and problem solving. The modules help students understand the basis of knowledge in physics as an interplay between observations, experiments, definitions and mathematical theory. The inquiry based activities in the modules give students the opportunity to work collaboratively to solve problems while thinking critically to make predictions and observations. Students use a powerful set of computer tools to record, display and analyze data as well as to develop mathematical models of physical phenomena. The design of many of the activities is based on the outcomes of physics education research. Without energy there is no well functioning economy besides facing social risks. This book provides a systemic approach to energy in Mexico and its relations to the USA arising from the energy reform of the former.
