environmental characteristics and equips readers with the knowledge needed to effectively investigate children's perspectives on environmental ergonomics. The research field of indoor thermal comfort adopts on the one hand physical parameter measurements and comfort indexes e.g. Predicted Mean Vote (PMV) or adaptive comfort and on the other an ergonomic assessment in the form of questionnaires. However, the latter can offer only limited insights into the issue of comfort as children often use different terms than adults to convey their experience of thermal comfort. The book aims to address this lack of understanding with regard to children's perceptions of indoor thermal comfort. The book is intended for HVAC engineers and researchers, architects and researchers interested in thermal comfort and the built environment. It also provides a useful resource for environmental psychologists, medical and cognitive researchers.
