A. READING 1

B Read the article. Check (✓) the main idea of the article.

☒ Traditional news organizations are upset with citizen journalists.

☐ Technology allows anyone to be a reporter, anytime and anywhere.

Citizen Journalism

Arpiha has just updated her news blog. The winners of a local election in Mumbai have just been announced, and she has listed their names on her blog. On the website of a local newspaper, Liat has recently posted a "digital story," a series of photos and descriptions of a whale rescue. And hundreds of people in the Dominican Republic are tweeting on their cell phones to describe a hurricane that is threatening the country.

What do these stories have in common? Technology is giving people the chance to be news reporters. More than ever before, technology is allowing everyone to share opinions, ideas, stories, photos, and videos from anywhere in the world. If there is breaking news, you can be sure that someone is reporting it.

Wikinews, iNewsIt, CNN's iReport, and MSNBC's FirstPerson are just a few of the websites where "citizen journalists" can write their news reports. More and more people are blogging texts, photos, and videos. They're sharing their personal thoughts and news reports with the world on these websites. And the increased prevalence of cell phones and cameras has made it even easier for people to share news.

Many media organizations such as CNN now have entire sections of these news stories on their websites. News editors used to decide what was news. Now you decide.

There has been some criticism of citizen journalism, however. For example, there are often mistakes in these stories, including incorrect facts, spelling, and grammar. These stories may not be as neutral as regular news organizations' stories usually are. Moreover, when people instantly upload stories and images, they cannot know how other people will use them later. But it seems that news by the people and for the people is here to stay.

Brookhart, Jan Chappuis, 2021-04-21 Of all school related factors that influence student learning only classroom instruction has greater impact than leadership And leaders have the greatest impact when they set direction citing that the goals and purpose they provide serves to strengthen and solidify the faculty The ten competencies for school leaders described in this book are based on a few factors First standards driven reform has created new knowledge requirements and responsibilities for school leaders In today s systems sorting students along a bell curve and artificially creating winners and losers has been replaced by a mission that all students must learn well Instead of a curriculum focused on what a teacher should teach the curriculum identifies what students must know and be able to do These standards are public and communicate what a state or district values when it comes to student learning Assessing the standards day to day not through large scale accountability tests or even local short cycle or common assessments is a requirement for effective standards based reform Second is the reward of improved student learning brought about by the use of classroom assessment for learning Assessment for learning has implications not just for school leaders but also for broader educational practice The research is conclusive and improved learning lies within the grasp of anyone wishing to apply it What does it look like when school leaders demonstrate mastery of the Ten Assessment Competencies Included in the book are examples learning activities and opportunities for practice as well as success indicators for each competency as leaders work toward mastery Resources in Education ,1997
