That Savage Water Stories:

Come Death and High Water Ann Cleeves, 2025-01-28 Before Shetland and Vera Ann Cleeves wrote the George and Molly Palmer Jones series following remarkable mysteries in a birdwatching community now in print for the first time in the US The picturesque privately owned island of Gillibry off the North Devon coast turns out to be the perfect site for a murder A routine weekend visit by the Gillibry Bird Observatory Trust is made memorable by the owner's announcement that he is going to sell the island A sale would mean the end of the Observatory which makes life worth living for many of the birders on the island Then a fire in Charlie Todd's cottage adds to their distress followed by a fierce storm The next morning the birders find Charlie dead in a bird hide Suddenly their pleasant September weekend assumes a dangerous new face Charlie Todd's murder could have been the deed of any member of the Trust And it falls to one of their own George Palmer Jones to unravel the identity of a killer within their midst The Insurance Year Book..., 1912 The Spectator Insurance Year Book, 1891 Fire Protection and Water Supply ..., 1892 The Insurance Year Book, 1912 That Savage Water Matthew R. Loney, 2014 This collection contains a series of stories about travels abroad from a queer perspective each crafted with a distinct spirit and intent and with prose that elicits a cross pollinating of personal and emotional insight a special achievement that enables two hemispheres to join through the epicenter of the 2004 Asian tsunami Author Matthew R Loney's use of language is rich in description full of lucid and lively textures smells and sensations as a way to transport readers to places they might not travel themselves Each person and place becomes a thread in a revelatory tapestry each transition of setting a steppingstone for discovery and adventure With striking vividness the author takes readers from familiar departure lounges to foreign cities steeped in history from enticing turquoise beaches for which everyone longs to desolate mountain ranges well off the beaten track from consecrating baths in the sacred Ganges to fringe indulgences in Cambodian brothels and back home to a northern Canadian cabin where the father of a tsunami victim reels in the quiet aftershocks of grief as the rubble of his memories drag him toward further destruction That Savage Water is an exceptional debut that explores the mechanisms of connectivity and the intrinsic entanglements that link people their diverse cultures and how they take the country they call home with them as they make their way through places they may on their way easily call their homes away from home The message anonymity while traveling in foreign landscapes can both free and isolate people through the friends they make the risks they take the foods and places they love and hate and at times the depravities they face as they pass through those alluring settings called abroad Jack London's Racial Lives Jeanne Campbell Reesman, 2011-03-15 Jack London 1876 1916 known for his naturalistic and mythic tales remains among the most popular and influential American writers in the world Jack London's Racial Lives offers the first full study of the enormously important issue of race in London's life and diverse works whether set in the Klondike Hawaii or the South Seas or during the Russo Japanese War the Jack Johnson world heavyweight bouts or the Mexican Revolution Jeanne Campbell Reesman explores his choices of genre by analyzing racial content and purpose and judges his literary artistry against a standard of racial tolerance Although he promoted white superiority in novels and nonfiction London sharply satirized racism and meaningfully portrayed racial others most often as protagonists in his short fiction Why the disparity For London racial and class identity were intertwined his formation as an artist began with the mixed heritage of his family His mother taught him racism but he learned something different from his African American foster mother Virginia Prentiss Childhood poverty shifting racial allegiances and a psychology of want helped construct the many houses of race and identity he imagined Reesman also examines London's socialism his study of Darwin and Jung and the illnesses he suffered in the South Seas With new readings of The Call of the Wild Martin Eden and many other works such as the explosive Pacific stories Reesman reveals that London employed many of the same literary tropes of race used by African American writers of his period the slave narrative double consciousness the tragic mulatto and ethnic diaspora Hawaii seemed to inspire his most memorable visions of a common humanity

Hot Water, Cold Blood David Reynolds, 2019-11-12 A former computer hacker now programmer is seduced and recruited by a wealthy woman to find her missing and presumed dead father Unfortunately for Andru Olshansky he is about to find out the cost of his kindness just might be his life
