broad empirical foundations involving experiment in nuclear physics and observation in geophysics and astronomy This text then explores the primeval abundance of the elements wherein the composition of the material from which the Galaxy is formed Other chapters consider the production of helium in the galaxy This book discusses as well the dynamics of the cores of highly evolved massive stars The final chapter deals with the measurements of site populations in crystal structures by electron diffraction and X ray Physicists astronomers geologists and geochemists will find this book extremely useful

Busarello,1992-05-31 The morphological scheme devised by Hubble and followers to classify galaxies has proven over many decades to be quite effective in directing our quest for the fundamental parameters describing the extragalactic manifold This statement is however far more true for spirals than for ellipticals Echoing the concluding remarks in Scott Tremaine's summary talk at the Princeton meeting on Structure and Dynamics of Elliptical Galaxies the Hubble classification of spirals is useful because many properties of spirals gas content spiral arm morphology bulge prominence etc all correlate with Hubble type By contrast almost nothing correlates with the elliptical Hubble sequence E1 to E7 During the last few years much effort has been put into the search for a more meaningful classification of ellipticals than Hubble's Concomitantly forwarded by some provocative conjectures by R Michard the classical question of whether E galaxies form a physically homogeneous family has been brushed up once more Results of these and other parallel studies look rather promising and point to suture part of the dichotomy between ellipticals and disk galaxies which had become popular in the early eighties owing to dynamical arguments At the same time it appears more and more clear that besides the usual genetic varieties of galaxies products of environmental evolution must also be contemplated in building our modern picture of the reign of galaxies The above considerations prompted us to solicit Prof Large-Scale Machine Learning in the Earth Sciences Ashok N. overview of some of the key challenges in the intersection of Earth science computer science statistics and related fields It explores a wide range of topics and provides a compilation of recent research in the application of machine learning in the field of Earth Science Making predictions based on observational data is a theme of the book and the book includes chapters on the use of network science to understand and discover teleconnections in extreme climate and weather events as well as using structured estimation in high dimensions The use of ensemble machine learning models to combine predictions of global climate models using information from spatial and temporal patterns is also explored The second part of the book features a discussion on statistical downscaling in climate with state of the art scalable machine learning as well as an overview of methods to understand and predict the proliferation of biological species due to changes in environmental conditions The problem of using large scale machine learning to study the formation of tornadoes is also explored in depth The last part of the book covers the use of deep learning algorithms to classify images that have very high resolution as well as the unmixing of spectral signals in remote sensing images of land cover The authors also apply long tail distributions to geoscience resources in the final chapter of the book

Innovations in Fishing Technology Aimed at Achieving Sustainable Fishing Alessandro Lucchetti, Valentina Melli, Jure Brčić, 2023-11-20 Over the last fifty years human exploitation of marine resources has become more efficient as the understanding of the habits and behaviour of the various species available in the sea gradually increased Thus technologies have developed naturally over time and fishing gears and practices have become more sophisticated These technical advances in fishing gear have generally led to more efficient economic fishing operations and better access to resources However fishing implies the harvesting of marine organisms directly from their natural environment therefore general awareness of environmental problems due to the exploitation of fishery resources has also increased In particular the poor selectivity of some gears is responsible for the capture of juveniles immature and undersized specimens of many species with negative consequences on the state of stocks In addition bycatch in marine fisheries is a major source of human caused mortality of marine megafauna often leading to the capture of vulnerable species Finally many bottom towed gears are responsible for high impacts on bottom communities and habitats with cascading consequences on the entire marine ecosystem All these impacts can lead to changes in the structure function and integrity of ecosystems including effects on the food webs and multispecies predator prey relationships
