from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1881 edition Excerpt and diplomats that we laugh to scorn the idea that affairs cannot be put on a footing that would satisfy even the staunchest believers in a scientific frontier The army in the old days was merely a machine which once set in motion by the hand of a minister ground out its life for years and years without any Existence in Sherpur 303 thing more than an occasional groan when its wheels were not properly lubricated But now things are changed every soldier is not only a fighting machine but a thinking machine digesting rumours and theories with marvellous voracity and reproducing patched and piebald opinions of his own which will intrude themselves into prominence There can be in our ranks no mute inglorious Wellingtons or Wolseleys for in the eyes of many purblind people the terms are synonymous an officer can now through many channels criticize and smash up the strategy of a campaign and calmly sit upon the heads of his seniors while his comrades applaud most heartily Even the private soldier in the ranks knows full well that if he only pulls the long bow sufficiently in a letter home some sympathizing party journal will accept his view of the situation and upon it draw with no uncertain hand the outlines of a new policy If the flood of criticism which is now surging about Sherpur could only be collected in one stream and be poured upon the devoted heads of the clever politicians who hold our destinies in their hands these gentlemen would never stand high and dry again they would be overwhelmed once and for all A shower bath braces the system a waterspout drowns all upon whom it falls and if there were not a feeling that our blundering along here without a guiding light to show     The Afghanistan Campaign Anthony H. Cordesman,2009     From Kabul to Baghdad and Back John R. Ballard,David W. Lamm,John K. Wood,2012 These experts in the field challenge commonly held views about the success of the global war on terrorism and its campaign in Afghanistan Their book questions some fundamentals of the population centric COIN doctrine currently in vogue and harshly criticizes key decisions about the prosecution of the Afghan war It is the only book to compare the campaigns in Iraq and Afghanistan from a national strategic perspective It questions several key operational factors in Afghanistan including the decision to give NATO the lead the performance of both civilian and military leaders and the prosecution of an Iraq War style surge It also contrasts the counterinsurgency campaign styles and the leadership of senior American officials in both Iraq and Afghanistan A final chapter outlines key lessons of the two campaigns

Strike Stephen Hummel, 2015-12-07 Until June 2010 the Taliban had never known defeat in its historic homeland of Kandahar But with the arrival of STRIKE Brigade of the storied 101st Airborne Division this intractable enemy would be defeated in its historic stronghold and the tide of the Afghanistan War would be changed forever In this remarkable firsthand account STRIKE reveals the successes and sacrifices of this incredible unit as it conducted the largest combined operation of the war in Afghanistan Army officer Stephen Hummel details how STRIKE cleared held and built its way toward victory against an entrenched insurgent force successfully employing COIN principles against an enemy known for its resiliency and in a country known for its defiance A must read for practitioners and non practitioners alike STRIKE illustrates why this unit succeeded where others failed and why it was awarded the Army s highest unit honor the Presidential Unit Citation for the critical 11 months it spent fighting for Kandahar
