Microgeneration producing energy for the home in the home is a substantial improvement over the current centralised and detached energy model employed the world over. Domestic Microgeneration is the first in depth reference work for this exciting and emerging field of energy generation. This interdisciplinary work draws together the social, economic, political, and environmental aspects of this very diverse energy genre into a single must have reference for academics and students of sustainability and energy related subjects, industry professionals, policy makers, and the growing number of energy literate householders who are looking for ways to minimise their environmental footprint and their energy bills with microgeneration.
