Campos,Michael R. Dietrich,Tiago Saraiva,Christian C. Young,2021-07-16 In this fourth volume in our Convening Science series with the Marine Biological Laboratory contributors including historians biologists and philosophers explore the development of bioengineering The essays show how engineering is both a means to a functional end and a method of learning about the world The book is organized around three themes controlling and reproducing knowing and making and envisioning to chart the increasing sophistication of our engineering of biological systems and to change our sense of the scales at which engineering occurs to include not just genetics but also ecosystem level intervention The volume will attempt to make the case for the centrality of engineering for understanding and imagining modern life Hearings, Reports and Prints of the Senate Select Committee on Equal Educational Opportunity United States. of their articles to hundreds and sometimes thousands of journalists around the world on the condition that journalists agree not to report their stories until a common time several days later When the embargo lifts airwaves and newspaper pages are flooded with stories based on the journal s latest issue In addition to divulging the realities behind this collusive practice Kiernan offers an unprecedented exploration of the embargo s impact on public and academic knowledge of science and medical issues He surveys twenty five daily U S newspapers and relates his in depth interviews with reporters to examine the inner workings of the embargo and how it structures our understanding of news about science Kiernan ultimately argues that this system fosters pack journalism and creates an unhealthy shield against journalistic competition The result is the uncritical reporting of science and medical news according to the dictates of a few key sources Scientific Integrity
