

Chapter Nine Outline

Defendants, Victims, and Witnesses

1. List the three characteristics of defendants
 - Defendants are overwhelmingly male and mostly economically underclass, and racial minorities are overrepresented
2. Describe how victims and witnesses view the court process
 - Victims and witnesses face frustrations in coping with the process (long waits and uncomfortable surroundings), experience travails in testifying, but overall exhibit surprising support for the system
3. Describe how court actors view victims and witnesses
 - Members of the courtroom work group become frustrated when victims and witnesses do not cooperate and are intimidated by the defendant or the defendant's friends and family
4. Discuss the prior relationships between defendants and victims and why this is important in domestic violence cases
 - In roughly half of the crimes of violence, the defendant and the victim had a prior relationship. Prior relationships are most notable in domestic violence cases, in which the battered woman is not always interested in criminal prosecution
5. Identify three types of programs that are designed to aid victims and witnesses in coping with the criminal justice process
 - Victim/witness assistance programs are designed to help better navigate the court process. Victim compensation seeks to provide economic assistance for victims of crime. And the Victims' Bill of Rights seeks to provide rights for victims because defendants already have rights
6. Explain why some view victim programs as aiding victims whereas others view these programs as manipulating victims
 - Some see the victims' movement as providing much-needed support for victims of crime. Others view the victims' movement as manipulating victims by providing symbols but no substance

After Jutland James V Goldrick, 2018-10-15

After Jutland analyses the naval war in Northern European waters following the critical but inconclusive Battle of Jutland A popular misconception is that Jutland marked the end of the operational career of the German High Sea Fleet and the beginning of a period of stagnation for both it and its opponent the Grand Fleet The reality is much more complex The German battle fleet was quiescent for much of the time in the North Sea but it supported an ambitious amphibious campaign in the Baltic while a bitter commerce war was waged by U Boats and the light craft fought a grueling campaign in the waters of the English Channel and the Belgian Coast After Jutland focuses primarily on the Royal Navy as the dominant maritime force but it also analyses the struggles of the beleaguered German Navy as it sought to find ways to break the tightening stranglehold of the blockade and undermine Allied control of the world s oceans and of British home waters in particular The continuing conflict in the Baltic will also be explored as the Germans increased the pressure on the Russian territory and the Russian fleet while the latter despite its descent into revolution still struggled to provide an effective counter to the Imperial German Navy The Royal Navy learned much from Jutland and applied those lessons to good effect It greatly improved the way that ships were organized for battle as well as developing new tactics There were also great leaps in communications and in command and control while both aviation and undersea operations including mine warfare developed at breakneck pace The Imperial German Navy made its own changes as a result of Jutland Indeed both Germany and Russia undertook much more naval innovation in the final years of the conflict than is often realized By 1918 all the protagonists were fighting what was in every way a multi dimensional maritime war that was the forerunner of naval conflict for the remainder of the twentieth century The period also saw the entry to the conflict of the United States and the increasing commitment of the United States Navy USN units saw hard service before the Armistice of November 1918 Many of the foundations of success in the next war were laid by the USN at this time The learning curve was steep as officers and sailors alike sought to catch up on the experience of nearly three years of conflict but they brought new methods and new applications of technology to the operational problems with which their coalition partners had been struggling This included the Sixth Battle Squadron which was rapidly assimilated into the Grand Fleet absorbing the hard won knowledge of their British colleagues but applying some of their own ideas The American
