

Outline Chapter 26: The New Power Balance, 1850–1900I. New Technologies and the World Economy*A. Railroads

1. By 1850, the first railroads had proved so successful that every industrializing country began to build railroad lines. Railroad building in Britain, France, Germany, Canada, Russia, Japan, and the United States fueled a tremendous expansion in the world's rail networks from 1850 to 1900.
2. In the non-industrialized world, railroads were also built wherever they would be of value to business or to government.
3. Railroads consumed huge amounts of land and timber for ties and bridges. Throughout the world, railroads opened new land to agriculture, mining, and other human exploitation of natural resources.

B. Steamships and Telegraph Cables

1. In the mid-nineteenth century, a number of technological developments in shipbuilding made it possible to increase the average size and speed of oceangoing vessels. These developments included the use of iron (and then steel) for hulls, propellers, and more efficient engines.
2. Entrepreneurs developed a form of organization known as the shipping line to make the most efficient use of these large and expensive new ships. Shipping lines also used the growing system of submarine telegraph cables to coordinate the movements of their ships around the globe.

C. The Steel and Chemical Industries

1. Steel is an especially hard and elastic form of iron that could be made only in small quantities by skilled blacksmiths before the eighteenth century. A series of inventions in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries made it possible to produce large quantities of steel at low cost.
2. Until the late eighteenth century, chemicals were also produced in small amounts in small workshops. The nineteenth century brought large-scale manufacture of chemicals and the invention of synthetic dyes and other new organic chemicals.
3. Nineteenth-century advances in explosives (including Alfred Nobel's invention of dynamite) had significant effects on both civil engineering and on the development of more powerful and more accurate firearms.
4. The complexity of industrial chemistry made it one of the first fields in which science and technology interacted on a daily basis. This development gave a great advantage to Germany, where government-funded research and cooperation between universities and industries made the German chemical and explosives industries the most advanced in the world by the end of the nineteenth century.
5. Waste products from steel and chemical production polluted the air and waterways.

Summary of Mark Booth's The Secret History of the World Everest Media,2022-06-13T22:59:00Z Please note This is a companion version not the original book Sample Book Insights 1 The idea of mental events generating physical effects may at first seem counter intuitive but in reality it s something we experience

every day For example when I think about stroking someone's cheek a pulse jumps a synapse in my brain something like an electrical current burns down a nerve in my arm and my hand moves 2 The universe that this book describes is different because it was made with humankind in mind It was created by God but he allowed his reflections humans to develop and grow over time 3 The universe is anthropocentric It has nurtured us through the centuries cradled us and helped the unique thing that is human consciousness to evolve When you cry out the universe turns towards you in sympathy 4 In the universe of the secret societies a coin flipped in strict laboratory conditions will still land heads up in 50 percent of cases but these laws only apply when all human subjectivity has been deliberately excluded In the normal run of things when human happiness and hopes for self fulfillment depend on the outcome of the roll of the dice the laws of probability are bent

Summary of Thom Hartmann's The Hidden History of Neoliberalism Everest Media, 2022-10-10T22:59:00Z Please note This is a companion version not the original book Sample Book Insights 1 Every generation has its utopians but none ever seems to work out The main reason utopian projects fail is that no matter how pure their intentions people will always be more interested in power than they are in other people's happiness In a society in which the government has the power of life and death over almost all individuals it's not hard to imagine that some people would abuse such power for themselves and their friends Utopian projects always fail because people are more interested in power than they are in other people's happiness 2 The American Revolution was brought about by President Franklin D Roosevelt in the 1930s who overhauled America's economic and political system The counterrevolutionaries of this era led by two Austrian economists and an American academic from the University of Chicago believed that FDR's Keynesian economics would end in disaster 3 Neoliberalism has been a disaster for the vast majority of Americans and as a result a new generation of Americans has grown up pissed off about it

The Allure of the Compelling Genius of History Philip McShane, 2015-12-11 This book intimates the movement of theology into respectable companionship with the general explanatory drive of the mature sciences At the same time it is an invitation to seed a strange effective Han Dynasty of the well of loneliness The first brief Han Dynasty in China 206 BCE 220 CE spanned the Galilean time of Jesus The new permanent Han Dynasty of global care is to be slowly and patiently weaved round the minding of the Wholly Frail that is the Unknown Real Jesus of the symphony of history

A Revolt Against Liberalism A.A.M. van der Linden, 2023-04-12 This is the first study to provide a comprehensive picture of the revolt brought about by American radical historians in the 1960s and 1970s With the turbulent sixties as a backdrop the work of radical luminaries like Eugene Genovese Herbert Gutman Staughton Lynd William Appleman Williams and Howard Zinn is discussed These historians made a significant contribution to present day notions about slavery working class history the New Deal the Cold War and a wealth of other subjects Their main target was American liberalism Radical criticism centered on the liberal concepts of the division of power and of the nature of man The acrimonious debate which ensued tore the historical profession apart Therefore most historians have stressed the disagreements between liberals and radicals Yet in this study it will be argued that in some respects the radicals were part and parcel of mainstream historiography though they presented a radical version of it Aspects of European History 1789-1980 Stephen J. Lee, 2008-01-28 Stephen Lee charts the most commonly encountered topics of nineteenth and twentieth century European history from the origins of the French Revolution through the social and political reforms of the last two centuries to the present Fearon World History Globe Fearon, 1994 A textbook tracing the history of the world from prehistoric times to the present day
