What's in the box?

- 1 Gas transmitter
- 2 Gas pulse sensors (2 different types)

Gas transmitter
+ connecting wire & plug

Gas pulse sensor- type A
(Shown already attached to an Actaris meter)

Gas pulse sensor- type B
(Shown before attaching to a gas meter)

Connecting your new gas transmitter

After you have your electricity transmitter up and running and your Saveometer is measuring and showing your electricity use, you can link a gas transmitter. The gas transmitter will then automatically be linked with your Saveometer displays providing they are all within range of the transmitter. Your new gas transmitter has a special lithium battery which will normally last between 12 - 14 years.

- 1 Take the gas transmitter so that you and it are close to your (already connected) electricity transmitter. Remove the tag as shown on the label on the rear side.
- 2 Press the central transmit button on gas transmitter for a few seconds until the blue LED starts to flash slowly & then release. The blue LED will continue to flash then immediately.....
- 3 Press the green transmit button on your electricity transmitter until the red LED starts to flash slowly.
- 4 The gas transmitter blue LED will soon stop flashing, and when it extinguishes the link has been completed. The red LED on the electricity transmitter will also extinguish about 5 to 10 seconds later.

All that has to be done now is to connect the gas transmitter & sensor to your gas meter

This is a typical installation (installations may vary so please read below)

The "m3" indicates metering in cubic meters of gas. There are 5 black numbers/digits indicating how many cubic meters have been used. The red digits are one hundredths of a Cu Mtr

Saveometer gas transmitter

This shows the blue LED and the transmit button used when linking with your electricity transmitter for the first (and only) time. When you have decided the precise gas transmitter location it may be attached using the velcro pad provided

Type A meter pulse sensor already fitted to the meter provided.

Type A - sensor attachment peg. Use a blunt point to fully press home the peg to firmly secure the sensor to your meter. The sensor must fit to the gas meter without any wobble or movement

RFI plug (same shape as on a telephone) from the gas transmitter is inserted in to the sensor socket - either of the 2 sockets provided may be used

Connecting wire between gas sensor & the gas transmitter. (The Elster meters use a different sensor & the transmitter plug is connected via a socket from the sensor. See 5c below)

Unused wire can be neatly coiled after transmitter position is decided
