

Scene Analysis

Romeo and Juliet's Act 3 Scene 1, is a scene that is filled with various different moods, and emotions, which are all motivated differently. Benvolio, Mercutio, Romeo and Tybalt all play major rolls in this scene that display characteristics of friendship, revenge, hate, violence, fate, etc. This scene begins with Benvolio and Mercutio talking, but as Tybalt enters, so does trouble. This changes the atmosphere in the scene and makes it very serious. This scene ends with Mercutio getting killed and changes the scene to a sadder feeling.

Benvolio was the most sensible and responsible one in this scene, who reported to the Prince and Romeo's parents. Even though he was sensible, he was feeling afraid. Benvolio said, - "I pray thee, good Mercutio, let's retire:" which proves that he was feeling afraid, because the Capulet's were coming. He said, "And if we meet, we shall not 'scape a brawl." He was feeling worried when he said that because he knew that something atrocious was going to happen. He was even more worried when he said this, "We talk here in the public haunt of men: Either withdraw unto some private places". He was trying to stop the fight and he also wanted them to not fight in public because of the Prince. It is very typical of Benvolio to tell Mercutio to not fight Tybalt, because he's the sensible one, who doesn't want any trouble to be caused. Benvolio was the nice guy from Tybalt, Mercutio and Romeo.

Mercutio was the fearless and confident one in this scene. He said, "By my heel, I care not." This shows that he was excited and confident when he was saying this, but there is plenty of irony in it too. Mercutio and Benvolio are both playing two very different roles in this scene. This is because Mercutio wants to have a fight, whereas Benvolio does not want there to be any fight between anyone. When Tybalt enters the scene, Mercutio started taunting him. He was very confident and wasn't scared of Tybalt. When Tybalt says, "thou consort'st with Romeo" it gets Mercutio very mad. Mercutio was getting angry and he's thinking why Romeo is refusing to fight with Tybalt. When this had been said, "O calm, dishonorable, vile submission!" Mercutio feels that Romeo is dishonoring him. This feeling of dishonor them motivates him to fight Tybalt. He says, "Tybalt, you rat-catcher, will you walk?" Mercutio is a really good friend of Romeo's and he doesn't want anyone to insult him, so it is very typical of him to fight Tybalt on Romeo's behalf. When Mercutio get's stabbed he says, "Ay, ay, a scratch, a scratch; marry, 'tis enough." This shows that he is trying to not scare the others by saying he's not that hurt. He also says a pun when he says, "Ask for me tomorrow, and you shall find me a grave man." Mercutio said something that both the prologue and the Prince say. He says, "A plague o' both your houses!"

Tybalt was an impetuous young man. When he enters the scene he says, "Follow me close, for I will speak to them." He was looking and anticipating a fight, and he walked with such confidence. Tybalt also gets mad after Mercutio says, "make it a word and a blow." It is very typical of Tybalt to want to fight Mercutio, because since he is such a hotheaded person, it's very easy for him to get intimidated. When Romeo enters
