QUESTION A 60-year-old male with a 10-year history of type 2 diabetes mellitus presents with a 2-week history of increasing fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. He reports that he has been unable to eat as much as he used to and has lost about 10 pounds. He also mentions that he has been feeling more tired than usual and has noticed some changes in his vision. He has no recent travel history and no known contact with anyone who has been ill. He is currently on insulin therapy and has no other medical conditions. Physical examination reveals a thin, well-appearing man with no significant findings. Laboratory studies show a hemoglobin A1c of 8.5%, serum glucose of 120 mg/dL, and a negative urinalysis. Further evaluation is warranted.

ANSWER The patient's symptoms and laboratory findings are consistent with a diagnosis of type 2 diabetes mellitus. The most likely cause of his symptoms is hyperglycemia, which can lead to fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. The physical examination and laboratory studies are consistent with this diagnosis. Further evaluation should include a thorough history and physical examination, as well as laboratory studies to confirm the diagnosis and assess for complications. The patient should be started on insulin therapy and monitored closely for any changes in his symptoms or laboratory findings.
