New Directions in Anthropology and Environment Carole L. Crumley, 2002-05-09 Carole L. Crumley has brought together top scholars from across anthropology in a benchmark volume that displays the range of exciting new work on the complex relationship between humans and the environment. Continually pursuing anthropology's persistent claim that both the physical and the mental world matter, these environmental scholars proceed from the holistic assumption that the physical world and human societies are always inextricably linked. As they incorporate diverse forms of knowledge, their work reaches beyond anthropology to bridge the sciences, social sciences, and the humanities, and to forge working relationships with non-academic communities and professionals. Theoretical issues such as the cultural dimensions of context, knowledge, and power are articulated alongside practical discussions of building partnerships, research methods, and ethics, and strategies for implementing policy. New Directions in Environment and Anthropology will be important for all scholars and non-academics interested in the relation between our species and its biotic and built environments. It is also designed for classroom use in and beyond anthropology, and students will be greatly assisted by suggested reading lists for their further exploration of general concepts and specific research. Handbook of Landscape Archaeology Bruno David, Julian Thomas, 2016-06-03 Over the past three decades, landscape has become an umbrella term to describe many different strands of archaeology. From the processualist study of settlement patterns to the phenomenologist's experience of the natural world, from human impact on past environments to the environment's impact on human thought, action, and interaction, the term has been used. In this volume for the first time, over 80 archaeologists from three continents attempt a comprehensive definition.

of the ideas and practices of landscape archaeology covering the theoretical and the practical the research and conservation and encasing the term in a global framework As a basic reference volume for landscape archaeology this volume will be the benchmark for decades to come All royalties on this Handbook are donated to the World Archaeological Congress

Routledge Handbook of Environmental Anthropology Helen Kopnina, Eleanor Shoreman-Ouimet, 2016-08-12

Environmental Anthropology studies historic and present human environment interactions This volume illustrates the ways in which today s environmental anthropologists are constructing new paradigms for understanding the multiplicity of players pressures and ecologies in every environment and the value of cultural knowledge of landscapes This Handbook provides a comprehensive survey of contemporary topics in environmental anthropology and thorough discussions on the current state and prospective future of the field in seven key sections As the contributions to this Handbook demonstrate the subfield of environmental anthropology is responding to cultural adaptations and responses to environmental changes in multiple and complex ways As a discipline concerned primarily with human environment interaction environmental anthropologists recognize that we are now working within a pressure cooker of rapid environmental damage that is forcing behavioural and often cultural changes around the world As we see in the breadth of topics presented in this volume these environmental challenges have inspired renewed foci on traditional topics such as food procurement ethnobiology and spiritual ecology and a broad new range of subjects such as resilience nonhuman rights architectural anthropology industrialism and education This volume enables scholars and students quick access to both established and trending environmental anthropological explorations into theory methodology and practice

Drawing the Sea Near C. Anne Claus, 2020-11-03 How Japanese coastal residents and transnational conservationists collaborated to foster relationships between humans and sea life Drawing the Sea Near opens a new window to our understanding of transnational conservation by investigating projects in Okinawa shaped by a conservation near approach which draws on the senses the body and memory to collapse the distance between people and their surroundings and to foster collaboration and equity between coastal residents and transnational conservation organizations This approach contrasts with the traditional Western conservation far model premised on the separation of humans from the environment Based on twenty months of participant observation and interviews this richly detailed engagingly written ethnography focuses on Okinawa s coral reefs to explore an unusually inclusive experiential and socially just approach to conservation In doing so C Anne Claus challenges orthodox assumptions about nature wilderness and the future of environmentalism within transnational organizations She provides a compelling look at how transnational conservation organizations in this case a field office of the World Wide Fund for Nature in Okinawa negotiate institutional expectations for conservation with localized approaches to caring for ocean life In pursuing how particular projects off the coast of Japan unfolded Drawing the Sea Near illuminates the real challenges and possibilities of work within the multifaceted transnational structures of global conservation organizations Uniquely it focuses on the conservationists themselves why and how has their approach to project work changed and how have they themselves been transformed in the process

Positive Ecology Gerald Schmidt, 2018-01-17 Until recently there has been a widespread view that we must give up amenities of modern life in order to achieve environmental sustainability While newspapers and other popular media tend to focus on the negative aspects of environmental change this volume examines the alternative notion of positive ecology Initially gleaned from the orientation of positive psychology this argues that environmental science has been all too focused on analysing negative pathologies and forgetting to provide more positive analysis and activism for sustainability Bringing together a wide range of positive ecology orientated case studies for the first time the book discusses the wider contexts of how humanity is dependent on a functioning biodiverse ecosphere of which we are only one part It provides an original and previously undervalued approach to sustainability and suggests that work towards sustainability is not only a necessity for our children s future but necessary sensible and meaningful in the present

Territories of Difference Arturo Escobar, 2008-11-26 Through analysis of the Colombian Pacific s geography peoples and environment Escobar questions the place assigned to epistemology politics and the economy in modernity arguing that hierarchical privilege can be subverted via activists entanglement

Yucatan in an Era of Globalization Eric N. Baklanoff, Edward H. Moseley, 2008-03-18 This work describes the profound changes to Yucat n s society and economy following the 1982 debt crisis that prostrated Mexico s economy The editors have assembled contributions from seasoned Yucatecologists historians geographers cultural students and an economist to chart the accelerated change in Yucat n from a monocrop economy to a full beneficiary and victim of rampant globalization

Experiencing New Worlds Jürg Wassmann, Katharina Stockhaus, 2007 The many different localities of the Pacific region have a long history of transformation under both pre and post colonial conditions More recently rates of local transformation have increased tremendously under post colonial regimes The forces of globalization which rapidly distribute commodities images and political and moral concepts across the region have presented Pacific populations with an unprecedented need and opportunity to fashion new and expanded understandings of their cultural and individual identities This volume the first in a new series examines the forces of globalization at different levels as they manifest themselves and operate across cultural cognitive and biographical dimensions of human life in the Pacific While posing familiar questions it offers new answers through the integration of cultural and psychological methods The contributors draw on practice theory cognitive science and the anthropology of space and place while exploring the key analytical rubrics of human agency memory and landscape Handbook of Archaeological Theories R. Alexander Bentley, Herbert D. G. Maschner, Christopher Chippindale, 2009-09-16 This handbook a companion to the authoritative Handbook of Archaeological Methods gathers original authoritative articles from leading archaeologists on all aspects of the latest thinking about archaeological theory It is the definitive resource for understanding how to think about archaeology

Human Ecodynamics in the North Atlantic Ramona Harrison, Ruth A. Maher, 2014-10-08 In Human Ecodynamics in the North Atlantic A Collaborative Model of Humans and Nature through Space and Time Ramona Harrison and Ruth A. Maher have compiled a series of separate research projects conducted across the North Atlantic region that each contribute greatly to anthropological archaeology This book assembles a regional model through which the reader is presented with a vivid and detailed image of the climatic events and cultures which have occupied these seas and lands for roughly a 5000 year period It provides a model of adaptability resilience and sustainability that can be applied globally First visiting the Northern Isles of Scotland in the Orkney Islands the reader is taken through the archaeology from the Neolithic Period through World War II in the face of sea level rise and rapidly eroding coastlines The Shetland Islands then reveal a deep time study of one large scale Iron Age excavation On to the northern coasts of Norway where information about late medieval maritime peoples is explained Iceland explores human environment interaction and implications of climate change presented from the Viking Age through the Early Modern Era Rounding out the North Atlantic Region is Greenland which sheds light on the Norse in the late Viking Age and the Middle Ages

The Cultural Context of Biodiversity Conservation Petra Maass, 2008 How are biological diversity protected areas indigenous knowledge and religious worldviews related From an anthropological perspective this book provides an introduction into the complex subject of conservation policies that cannot be addressed without recognising the encompassing relationship between discursive political economic social and ecological facets By facing these interdependencies across global national and local dynamics it draws on an ethnographic case study among Maya Q'eqchi communities living in the margins of protected areas in Guatemala In documenting the cultural aspects of landscape the study explores the coherence of diverse expressions of indigenous knowledge It intends to remind of cultural values and beliefs closely tied to subsistence activities and ritual practices that define local perceptions of the natural environment The basic idea is to illustrate that there are different ways of knowing and reasoning seeing and endowing the world with meaning which include visible material and invisible interpretative understandings These tend to be underestimated issues in international debates and may provide an alternative approach upon which conservation initiatives responsive to the needs of the humans involved should be based on Political Ecology of Tourism Mary Mostafanezhad, Roger Norum, Eric J. Shelton, Anna Thompson-Carr, 2016-01-08 Why has political ecology been assigned so little attention in tourism studies despite its broad and critical interrogation of environment and politics As the first full length treatment of a political ecology of tourism the collection addresses this lacuna and calls for the further establishment of this emerging interdisciplinary subfield Drawing on recent trends in geography anthropology and environmental and tourism studies Political Ecology of Tourism Communities Power and the Environment employs a political ecology approach to the analysis of tourism through three interrelated themes Communities and Power Conservation and Control and Development and Conflict While geographically broad in scope with chapters that span Central and South America to Africa and South Southeast and East Asia to Europe and Greenland the collection illustrates how tourism related environmental challenges are shared across prodigious geographical distances while also attending to the nuanced ways they materialize in local contexts and therefore demand the historically situated place based and multi scalar approach of political ecology This collection advances our understanding of the role of political economic and environmental concerns in tourism practice It offers readers a political ecology framework from which to address tourism related issues and themes such as development identity politics environmental subjectivities environmental degradation land and resources conflict and indigenous ecologies Finally the collection is bookended by a pair of essays from two of the most distinguished scholars working in the subfield Rosaleen Duffy foreword and James Igoe afterword This collection will be valuable reading for scholars and practitioners alike who share a critical interest in the intersection of tourism politics and the environment Reimagining Political Ecology Aletta Biersack, James B. Greenberg, 2006-11-22 A collection of ethnographies grounded in second generation political ecology which focuses on the interchanges between nature and culture and the local and the global

GroundWork for Community-Based Conservation Diane Russell, Camilla Harshbarger, 2003-05-13 While ecological and biophysical sciences have dominated the theory and practice of conservation practitioners and researchers worldwide know that conservation initiatives have profound social impacts and consequences for local communities and cultures This concise and accessible book will give students and practitioners a solid introduction to important methods from ethnography and interviews to surveys and community mapping always attending to the imperatives of local control and community partnerships
