Mitchell, 2017-06-30 This collection of essays asserts the specific value of world history research and teaching showing how the field contributes to the larger historical profession and offering concrete suggestions to develop more interaction between the academy and the public The twelve contributors each with their own academic areas of interest are experienced scholars and classroom teachers Uniting them together in this volume is their professional relationship with Jerry H Bentley 1949-2012 This shared connection served as a catalyst to showcase Bentley's enduring legacy a commitment to investigating large scale questions with detailed empirical evidence that explains the human condition documenting both patterns of similarity and difference in ways that account for regional and temporal variations The volume continues Bentley's meticulous attention to world historical methods focus on scale cross cultural encounter comparison periodization critical geography and interdisciplinarity Encounters Old and New in World History responds to provocations that Jerry Bentley tendered in his scholarship and through his professional activities Contributors interrogate the institutional settings disciplinary proclivities methodological choices and diverse source bases of world history research and teaching Several essays address the ways in which present day concerns influence research on local and global scales Other essays pay particular attention to the production and circulation of knowledge across regional temporal and class boundaries as well as between the academy and the wider public Claiming the centrality of globally informed and focused approaches to historical inquiry researchers continue the conversations that Bentley carried on through his own scholarship teaching editing of the Journal of World History participating in public forums and contributing to public discussions about the place of history in understanding today s global integration The stakes involved in asking questions about the shared history of humankind continue to increase in the current era of intensified globalization It is incumbent upon scholars with the skills to work across linguistic geographic temporal and disciplinary boundaries to show the ways that cross cultural encounters happened historically and to point out how such interactions play out in the institutions classrooms and public debates where historical interpretations are created and shared

A Primer for Teaching World History Antoinette Burton,2012 This book offers principles to consider when creating a world history syllabus it prompts a teacher rather than aiming for full world coverage to pick an interpretive focus and thread it through the course It will be used by university faculty graduate students and high school teachers who are teaching world history for the first time or want to rethink their approach to teaching the subject Catalog James Millikin University,1912 Catalog Gustavus Adolphus College,1927

EdSpeak Diane Ravitch,2010-06-22 Have you ever heard of Suggestopedia Do you know what a gallery walk is How about the difference between a stem and a foil Maybe you don t think it s necessary to know these education terms Diane Ravitch thinks otherwise Education like most professions has its own unique vocabulary that is often unfamiliar to outsiders But unlike those of other professions Ravitch contends the language of education must be clear and intelligible to all Because education in large part determines the future of our society economy and culture it s crucial that education issues be understood by the general public And to understand the issues we need to understand the specialized language used in the field In this book Ravitch demystifies the often obscure and ever changing lingo of the education field With more than 500 entries EdSpeak translates what Ravitch refers to as the strange tongue of pedagogese into plain English adding historical context and lively commentary along the way This glossary will serve as a valuable resource both for veteran educators who need to stay abreast of newly emerging terminology and for newcomers to the profession be they teachers administrators parents students or just citizens who care about what happens in the classroom
