

PHILOSOPHY 1

"The Giver" Questions:

1. Why are there two-color schemes in the movie (grayscale and colored)? What does it entail?

There are two color schemes in the movie to represent the distinction of the reality they were forced to believe in and the reality there was. These colors call for the thin line between the norm the people were subjected to cling to, and the actuality hidden from them.

The grayscale world was where everything was supposed to look the same and be treated similarly, hence the genetic manipulation of removing the ability of the people to see colors plus their daily dose of injections which forcibly puts an end to having feelings and emotions. It was a world filled with rules—orchestrated and manufactured perfectly.

The colored world was the life that has been before the grayscale world was ruled and created. It's vibrant as it was full of all the colors one could name. It represents all the memories there were. The portrayal of the colored world meant beauty and freedom and all the good things that could've been. Though as everything has its counterpart, these good things came with destruction. Chaos which lead people to believe that creating the grayscale world was the solution when it wasn't, not even close. It was supposed to get rid of war and discrimination, but it only concealed the truth.

2. The post- apocalyptic world presented in the movie "The Giver" prohibits any kinds of deviation from the norm. Would you prefer this world over the one we have now? What is the difference between treating everybody as the one and the same and everybody as a different/unique being? What dangers does the second option pose?

I will gladly choose to live in the world we have now over and over again, because no matter how lonely or dangerous it can get, I will always prefer to experience the feeling of excitement, of having something to look forward to; I would still want to expect even if disappointment awaits, to feel sadness if it means I get to know what genuine happiness

Experience Of Life ASHWINI KANDHA PANDIYAN, n Experience that changed our life Life is full of learning and it is mostly due to our daily life Experiences These ex periences are mostly based on our surrounding situation from where we learn new things everyday Life also pro vides you with some chances to experience new people or places that are indeed out of the ordinary life All things in life are experiences We cross the path of life with dreams indelible tragedies deep memories numer ous wounds that often appear in everyday life Even if life takes a few steps the mind goes towards something The path to go is to cross over the wounds even if it is a rock or a thorn You just have to be more discriminating with the help you render toward other people If you learn from life giving experience and correct mistakes life will be enjoyable and will lead you to think about what the next step is In doing so we will one day appreciate the life experience learned as history

Integrating Service Learning and Multicultural Education in Colleges and Universities Carolyn R. O'Grady, 2014-04-08 The focus of this book is on the ways in which service learning and multicultural education can and should be integrated so that each may be strengthened and consequently have greater effect on educational and social conditions It offers a significant attempt to forge a dialogue among practitioners of service learning and multicultural education The overriding theme is that service learning without a focused attention to the complexity of racial and cultural differences can reinforce the dominant cultural ideology but academic work that seeks to deconstruct these norms without providing a community based touchstone isolates students and schools from the realities of the larger communities of which they are part Although the chapter authors provide varied perspectives on the benefits and challenges of integrating multicultural education and service learning they all are committed to a vision of education that synthesizes both action and reflection None of the authors pretend to have all the answers to what this integration should look like nor do they believe that today s social problems are easily ameliorated through education Rather they share theories practices failures and triumphs in order to further the conversation about the importance of aligning what educators say about the world and how they act in and on it These authors share the view that multicultural education is truly transformative for students only when it includes a community action component and likewise service learning is truly a catalyst for change only when it is done from a multicultural and socially just perspective It is their hope that the ideas explored in this book will further the work of those who share a commitment to the integration of action and reflection
