Telehealth Networks for Hospital Services: New Methodologies Gulla, Vincenzo, 2013-02-28 Innovations in providing vital health care in homes and remote areas could ultimately change the way society views the health care markets and services in the future Telehealth systems promise innovations that can extend a hospital's knowledge and resources connecting with patients who may not be able to otherwise receive services Telehealth Network for Hospital Services New Methodologies carefully focuses on and describes different networks that link hospitals and their services to patients outside their territory This reference work not only focuses on the technology that is integral to the function of a telehealth network but also its users and the collaboration that is necessary to be successful Researchers practitioners and health professionals interested in understanding health markets and organizations as well as the innovative technologies that help them function will greatly benefit from this publication

Gaining Health Anne Wood-Ritsataki, Péter Makara, 2009 Noncommunicable diseases pose the greatest threat to the health of the people in the WHO European Region yet this is an area where the greatest health gains are available at relatively modest cost This book gives detailed insight into policy development in eight European countries over several decades to address the challenge of noncommunicable diseases and draws out the main themes to assist policy makers in formulating their own responses While originally developed to support countries in implementing the WHO European Strategy for the Prevention and Control of Noncommunicable Diseases the insights are likely to be of benefit to a much wider audience

First Do No Harm John Lister,2014-05-01 The EU funded HeaRT Health Reporter Training project 2010 2012 laid an important foundation by investigating the existing very limited provision of specialist education and training courses for health journalists throughout the EU and also in the USA where the existence of a large professional body has influenced the availability of training resources Their findings indicate a widespread almost universal lack of an institutional investment in health journalism This is also borne out by the reports from journalists themselves responding to the snapshot HeaRT survey of health journalists and journalists covering health stories in the six partner countries Estonia Finland Germany Greece the UK and Romania The lack of academic engagement in the training of journalists in this specialist field also helps to explain the shortage of literature on health journalism This book is an effort to take this work further and to draw in experience from North America in order to ensure that the fight for improved quality of health reporting continues to be raised The chapters are intended to offer more scope for health journalists to develop their understanding of the relevant issues topics and skills and test out a variety of potential sources of useful information Throughout the book we identify sources and useful contacts and information to enable health journalists to work more effectively and deliver more knowledgeable informative stories for their audience The contributors welcome feedback and comment we hope this is the start of a growing self awareness of many who are working as health reporters and a lively debate on the best ways to deliver quality health journalism

Pediatric and Congenital Cardiac Care Paul R. Barach,Jeffery P. Jacobs,Steven E. Lipshultz,Peter C. Laussen,2014-12-04 There are growing questions regarding the safety quality risk management and costs of PCC teams their training and preparedness and their implications on the welfare of patients and families This innovative book authored by an international authorship will highlight the best practices in improving survival while paving a roadmap for the expected changes in the next 10 years as healthcare undergoes major transformation and reform An invited group of experts in the field will participate in this project to provide the timeliest and informative approaches to how to deal with this global health challenge The book will be indispensable to all who treat pediatric cardiac disease and will provide important information about managing the risk of patients with pediatric and congenital cardiac disease in the three domains of the analysis of outcomes the improvement of quality and the safety of patients

Primary Health Care and Population Mortality Richard Baker,2023-03-29 Population health management is being increasingly adopted by health systems yet the importance of primary health care in influencing population mortality and the mechanisms that explain it are not well understood Too often primary health care is regarded as a service for minor health problems and for managing access to secondary care This limited view is no longer tenable and it is time to be much more ambitious about the place of primary health care in health systems worldwide In delivering and planning health care and in re building health systems after the pandemic practitioners and policymakers in low middle and high income countries need evidence on how primary health care affects population mortality and practical advice to effect change Primary Health Care and Population Mortality fulfils this need Drawing on his long experience as both a practitioner and researcher the author Richard Baker describes how primary health is crucial to the effect of health systems on population mortality including its potential for reducing inequalities in mortality This accessible new book will provide invaluable information to leaders in service development and delivery academics in primary health care and those working within international organisations that are promoting primary health care for improving population health It will also be of practical value to general practitioners primary health care nurses and managers and public health staff

Global Harmonization of Methodological Approaches to Nutrient Intake Recommendations National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Food and Nutrition Board, 2018-06-29 The National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine convened a public workshop in September 2017 to explore the evidence for achieving global harmonization of methodological approaches to establishing nutrient intake recommendations. Participants reviewed current nutrient intake recommendations, discussed the feasibility of harmonizing approaches to setting such recommendations globally, examined the development of principles by which they may be applied in diverse contexts that relate to individuals or populations or regulatory purposes, and examined perceptions and acceptance of nutrient intake recommendations by different stakeholders. This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop.
