Reinventing The Curriculum New Trends In Curriculum Policy And Practice:

Reinventing the Curriculum Mark Priestley, Gert Biesta, 2013-06-20 Scotland's Curriculum for Excellence offers an example of a different approach to national curriculum development. It combines what are claimed to be the best features of top down and bottom up approaches to curriculum development and provides an indication of the broad qualities that school education should promote rather than a detailed description of curriculum content. Advocates of the approach argue that it provides central guidance for schools and maintains national standards whilst at the same time allowing schools and teachers the flexibility to take account of local needs when designing programmes of education. Reinventing the Curriculum uses Scotland's Curriculum for Excellence as a rich case study analysing the strengths and weaknesses of this approach to curriculum design and development and exploring the implications for curriculum planning and development around the world.

An Ecosystem for Research-Engaged Schools David Godfrey, Chris Brown, 2019-03-14 Looking at the potential for research use by educators to improve schools for all young people, An Ecosystem for Research-Engaged Schools presents a range of ground breaking research and fascinating case studies. It carefully explores the elements and dimensions of research engaged schools using an ecosystems perspective to study the layers and interconnections that occur amongst the people and institutions that exist within the ecosystem. Allowing the reader to consider how to ensure independent elements of the ecosystem are maintained to ensure an effective balance, this book brings together contributions from international experts working in a variety of fields such as school leadership, professional development and accountability. Key issues facing the research use ecosystem both theoretically and empirically are covered with examples of innovative practice, new theories and value systems. The book also provides an insight into the exciting possibility of such a system of learning and innovation in our schools where structures, cultures, practices and policies align to promote research informed school improvement. With chapters bringing together issues from different aspects of the system, this book expands the analysis of evidence and research informed practice, considering the wider environment within which it is undertaken, shows the interplay and tensions between aspects of the ecosystem and illustrates how different aspects of the ecosystem affect evidence use. It reconciles all aspects of the ecosystem within an overarching framework which attempts to explain the complex totality of the ecosystem. Designed to both challenge and inspire, An Ecosystem for Research-Engaged Schools truly bridges the gap between theory and practice. It will be an invaluable asset to those currently working in the area, allowing them to think more deeply about their work and the theoretical mechanisms that underpin it. Policy makers, practitioners and teachers will also find this book a fascinating read.

Teacher Agency Mark Priestley, Gert Biesta, Sarah Robinson, 2015-10-22 Recent worldwide education policy has reinvented teachers as agents of change and professional developers of the school curriculum. Academic literature has analyzed changes in how teacher professionalism is conceived in policy and in practice, but Teacher Agency provides a fresh perspective on this issue, drawing upon an ecological theory of agency. Using this model for understanding agency Mark Priestley Gert Biesta and Sarah Robinson explore empirical findings from the Teacher Agency and Curriculum Change project funded by the UK based Economic and Social Research Council ESRC Drawing together this research with the authors international experiences and perspectives Teacher Agency addresses theoretical and practical issues of international significance The authors illustrate how teacher agency should be understood not only in terms of individual capacity of teachers but also in respect of the cultures and structures of schooling
