

Reflection

Introduction

Students will explore the properties of mirrors.

Materials

Mini-Laser or narrow beam flashlight

Flat mirrors

Small cardboard boxes (one to support the mirror and another to serve as a "target")

Butcher paper, about 2 by 3 feet per sheet

Ruler or straight edge

Protractor

Pencil

Notebook – to record the experiment, data, analysis, and conclusions

Extension Activity: aluminum foil, manila folder, tape, wooden ruler, laser or flashlight, and two blackboard erasers

Preparation

Start by proposing a guiding question that will lead to a student investigation: "What happens when a light beam strikes a mirror?" Students may respond "it reflects" – but where does it go? Continue with a discussion that further whittles down and refines the response until the class formulates a hypothesis based on their everyday experience and prior knowledge about what happens to the reflected beam.

Experiment Setup – Test the Hypothesis

If you would like to keep the activity open ended, ask the students to suggest materials necessary to explore their hypothesis with an experiment. There are a few things to consider:

Variables – what am I measuring? (incident and reflected angles)

Experiment setup – how am I going to assemble the materials and measure the variables? (trace the light path and measure angles with a protractor)

Materials – what will I need to set up the experiment, measure the variables, record and organize the data? (light source, mirror, protractor, pencil, butcher paper, graph paper, etc.)

Notice how the experiment setup and materials are inter-related. This is similar to how science (variables and experiment setup) and technology (materials and tools) are related, with one affecting the other.

An example: Variables: incident and reflected beam angles

Experiment setup:

1. On a tabletop, lay out the butcher paper. Students will later trace the beam paths onto this paper with a pencil.

Writing across Contexts Kathleen Blake Yancy, Liane Robertson, Kara Tacsak, 2014-04-15 Addressing how composers transfer both knowledge about and practices of writing Writing across Contexts explores the grounding theory behind a specific composition curriculum called Teaching for Transfer TFT and analyzes the efficacy of the approach Finding that TFT courses aid students in transfer in ways that other kinds of composition courses do not the authors demonstrate that the content of this curriculum including its reflective practice provides a unique set of resources for students to call on and repurpose for new writing tasks The authors provide a brief historical review give attention to current curricular efforts designed to promote such transfer and develop new insights into the role of prior knowledge in students ability to transfer writing knowledge and practice presenting three models of how students respond to and use new knowledge assemblage remix and critical incident A timely and significant contribution to the field Writing across Contexts will be of interest to graduate students composition scholars WAC and writing in the disciplines scholars and writing program administrators
